

In training a crew for a boat race the coach spends hours and days and weeks training his oarsmen to stroke together. Every stroke of every man is timed to a minute precision to the end that the crew will work as one man. If they fail in this, it matters not how strong they are as individuals, the race will be lost. The same is true of communities. A community, to put over a program must marshal all its forces and concentrate on one goal. There can be no ragged strokes, no individualism, no hanging back for pet schemes and plans. The small community has the resource to make of itself anything it desires within reason, but to do so, it must concentrate—it must have the co-operation of every force and every energy and every resource. Cameron can have anything she wants that is within reason if every force and talent in this community will get behind the project and pull together.

If the need really exists for a public utilities commission for Texas then Governor Moody has given the legislature an opportunity to make a historic score. There has been some talk at add times about a public utilities commission. People do strange things. There is nothing a commission can do to protect the consumers as Governor Moody points out, that could not have been done by the people themselves when they granted the franchise. They gave away their public domain, now they will pay more taxes for a commission to protect them. This is not offered as a reason for or against the proposition, but this is true. Powers are inherent with cities and towns that have their own government to deal with this question of rates. Why urge a commission? When fastened on the people it would greatly increase the tax burdens.

Recently the Insull interests persuaded the people of Harlingen to vote in an election to authorize sale to them of the utilities system of that city. Mr. Insull has been somewhat tainted by congressional disclosures in investigations of the power trust. That probably meant nothing to the people at large over the country, but it does prove that people do strange things. The city government has refused sale of the plant though offered a million. Insull took it for cancellation of their debts. Now they will pay Mr. Insull instead of their bonding companies.

Went to Temple Tuesday for the heresy investigation. Mr. Kenney the liberal pastor of Cameron's Presbyterian church won a victory for liberalism. The 'grand jury' no billed him. Mr. Kenney is now being widely sought by influential pulpits. He likes the people of Cameron. He says he has found much satisfaction here and many broad and liberal minds. Mr. Kenney will preach Sunday morning at his church. Heresy hunters will not bother him any more.

Difficulties are like hills to the traveler. They appear formidable in the distance, but if one keeps on moving, the road levels over the top before one is aware of it, and the valley on the other side bursts into view.

Spurgeon once said: "Trials teach us what we are; they dig up the soil and let us see what we are made of; they just turn up some of the ill weeds on the surface."

DECLINE IN DEPOSITS SHOWN IN STATEMENTS

CITIZENS BANK SHOWS SLIGHT GAIN BUT TOTAL FOR CITY IS LESS

A decline of $79,849.44 in bank deposits for the city of Cameron is disclosed in the statements of the Cameron banks issued effective December 31, 1928. This is the first time a decline has been noted in a long period.

Liquidation with money being sent out of the community is said to offer an explanation for this showing.

The total deposits of the Cameron banks as published on October 11, 1928 showed a total of deposits on that date of $3,153,130.10 whereas in the statements published this week showing the condition of the banks on December 31, 1928 the total deposits are $3,077,280.76.

The Citizens National Bank is the only Cameron bank to show an increase of deposits the amount of increase being small, $923.62.

The First National Bank shows a decline in deposits of $57,720.95 while the Cameron State Bank shows a decline of $23,052.11 in deposits.

Generally the condition of the Cameron banks is excellent indicating a healthful state of the finances of the community. The decline is only temporary and is not indicative of the state of the community.

Woman Gets 18 Months In State Penitentiary

Hilda Watson was convicted by a jury in District court here this week and given 18 months in the state penitentiary on a charge of unlawfully possessing intoxicating liquor.

The woman was charged along with her husband John Watson with possessing liquor and he is to be tried for a similar offense, the case having been continued.

So far as could be ascertained this morning this is the second conviction for women in liquor cases in this county. Other court news follows:

The January term of district court met Monday. No grand jury was impaneled though one was drawn in case it should be needed this term. The dockets were called and several cases set for trial.

Paschal Johnson pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor and was given a year in the penitentiary. He accepted his sentence.

Grant Friarson's case for unlawful transportation of intoxicating liquor was continued on account of his being sick.

The jury assessed punishment at 18 months in the penitentiary for Hilda Watson charged with unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

The case of State vs. John Flewellen charged with murder is on call for Thursday and a venire of 75 names ordered.

Miss Tabbie Robinson is at Gulf, Texas this week visiting her sister and her mother.

Brilliant Defense of Liberal Pastor Sweeps Presbytery in Investigation At Temple

By J. B. WHITE
Editor The Cameron Herald

TEMPLE, Texas, January 8—In a brilliant defense, presenting what is declared to be the greatest extemporaneous address ever heard in the councils of the church, Rev. H. G. Kenney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Cameron, Tuesday in Temple won a victory for liberalism and defeated charges of heresy sought through investigation by a "grand jury" of the Presbytery in executive session.

Not unlike the great Paul of Tarsus who in a dramatic hour of Christian history stood before King Agrippa in the ancient city of Caesarea to declare a new thing, appealing to the intelligence of the judgment seat of Caesar, comments by members of the Presbytery might lead one to say: "Almost thou persuadest me." For in this hour of reckoning at the bar of orthodoxy Mr. Kenney stood with resolute spirit in flaming eloquence to sustain the views of modern scholarship and to write a new chapter in the history of Central Texas Presbytery.

The victory aside from its privilege of free speech in his pulpit is not one of aggression, but paves the way for a new day and a new philosophy to which a mighty intellect has been attuned in conviction of need for a 20th century application of the principles set forth by the Savior of Mankind.

At the conclusion of the hearing Stonewall J. McMurray, stated clerk, announced that a committee had been appointed which will confer with Mr. Kenney to obtain further light on his views with but one conflict remaining out of the mass of detailed charges filed and signed by five members of his board of Elders.

"His defense was really a brilliant thing," said Dr. McMurray when seen by newspaper correspondents shortly after the meeting had adjourned. The committee is composed of Dr. McMurray, C. T. Caldwell of Waco and Rev. W. H. Matthews of Marlin. "The Presbytery is satisfied in a large part with the statements of Mr. Kenney," said Dr. McMurray.

Convene at 11 O'clock
It is now 11 o'clock and the members of the Presbytery are gathered within the walls of the little church that nestles amid the drab foliage of stately trees, dimly lighted, its weatherboard sides sealed with moss and traces of decay. Filing in silently and taking seats in the rear of the building are members of Mr. Kenney's congregation, all hoping their pastor will be able to offer a satisfactory defense before the galaxy of leadership here assembled.

Looking into the faces of the ministers, men of high and moderate standing in the councils of this great denominational enterprise, one feels that serious business is at hand. The delegates are splitting into small groups about the building and all talking in subdued tones. The stated clerk, Dr. Stonewall J. McMurray is at his desk busy with a mass of details.

Kenney Sits Alone
Over against a stained glass window apart, sits Mr. Kenney reading from a volume which appears to be a book on church laws and dogma. We are told he has prepared no address of defense, due somewhat to the fact that he is as yet unacquainted with the nature and detail of the specific charges that have been filed. He is the least disturbed of the distinguished company of men who are to propound to him questions touching upon his ministry at Cameron. In perfect charm of agreeable personality he greets newspaper correspondents who go over to the little bench where he sits waiting for the session to open. They propound to him questions which he answers with courtesy and great dignity.

"There have been many men labeled as heretics during the past 2000 years and if that is my lot I will find myself in notable company," he said in a soft, vibrant voice.

Now the meeting is about to be called to order and still Mr. Kenney does not know what the charges will be, except that they will be brought under the general broad charge of "Modernism and Liberalism."

"Are you a liberal," Mr. Kenney is asked.

"Certainly I am. I do not see how any man in this day and time can be other than a liberal," he replied.

When asked what college he attended Mr. Kenney said:

"O, my, if that came out it would be adding fuel to the fire. The folks would think it was awful. You know how they regard certain higher educational institutions."

Visitors Are Excluded
We are back now at our seats. The moderator on suggestion of Dr. McMurray that the time is at hand for the session to convene, takes the gavel. The stated clerk is asked to read the call whereupon Dr. William Redd, veteran minister and Presbyterian writer, declares this to be an adjourned executive session, that the visitors will be "appreciated for their absence, and we would also be glad to magnify our absence from this meeting and would do so but for the stern duty that is placed upon us."

Directors For State Bank Named; Officers To Be Named Later

Election of officers for the Cameron State Bank has been postponed, according to J. C. Tucker, vice president.

The meeting of the stock holders on Tuesday, January 8, resulted in the election of the following directors: T. F. Hardy, Preston Graves, B. J. Matocha, George T. Graves, Will Davis, W. O. Triggs and J. C. Tucker.

Mr. Hardy has been ill for some time at his home and it is thought that as soon as he has recovered the election of officers will be held. In the meantime the old officers who will be re-elected will continue to function with the business of the bank.

J. K. Freeman Up From Attack of Influenza

J. K. Freeman who has been ill from an attack of influenza was able to be at his office on Wednesday where he was greeted by a large number of his friends.

Mr. Freeman has been ill at his home for several days and has not been able to attend to his office duties but in his absence the work has been carried on by Miss Annie Slama, his efficient assistant.

NO CHANGES ARE MADE IN CITIZENS BANK

ALL OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS ARE RE-ELECTED AT MEETING TUESDAY, JANUARY 8

No changes are made in the personnel of the Citizens National Bank as shown by the election of officers and directors here on Tuesday, January 8. All officers and directors remain the same.

Oxshier Smith was re-elected to the presidency of the Citizens National Bank to succeed himself, a place he has occupied with this bank for a number of years. The Citizens National Bank has become the largest bank in Milam county and one of the strong banks of the state. Mr. Smith has directed the policies of this bank and given it growth.

The list of officers announced is as follows: T. S. Henderson, vice president; W. O. Newton, active vice president; Irvin N. Clary, cashier; Philip Reid, assistant cashier; Rush Thomas, director; Dr. D. E. Monroe, director.

Venison Supper Served To Club Directors

Frank S. Lesovsky assisted by A. E. Smith of the Newport Cafe, served the directors of the Commercial Club on Monday night with a venison supper.

The meat was brought back by Mr. Lesovsky when he felled a large buck near the Mexican border some days ago. Mr. Lesovsky serves the directors with a venison supper each year following his trips to the deer country. So far he has never failed to bring back the 'bacon.'

T. S. Henderson, Jr., was toastmaster and in his pleasing way conducted a program of great merit with a number of the guests coming in for jokes and fun. Addresses were also made by a number of directors and visitors.

Talking Texas Urged By Texas Power and Light Co. In Ads

"Texans, lets talk Texas," is the caption of an advertisement in this issue of The Herald by the Texas Power and Light Company.

Making 1929 the most active year Texas has ever experienced is the program set out by this company.

Letting the outside world know what Texas has to offer in the way of manufacturing sights and commercial advantages are the things stressed.

J. P. Wimberly of Rosebud Route 2, was in the city Tuesday and while here was a welcome guest at the office of The Herald. Mr. Wimberly extended his subscription to 1930 and declares he likes The Herald and wants it to come to his address every week.

Miss Johnnie Mae Moore visited friends and relatives in Coolidge last week.

MRS. T. C. STAFFORD DIES AT HOME IN CAMERON

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PIONEER MOTHER HELD TUESDAY, JANUARY 8.

Mrs. T. C. Stafford, 67, resident of Cameron for the past 42 years died at the family residence in Cameron at a nearly hour Monday morning, January 7, 1928 following a bronchial attack which resulted in heart failure.

Mrs. Stafford had been in ill health for some years, one of her troubles being a weak heart. She died as she lay sleeping in her bed sometime during the early morning hours, having been found lifeless by her children who arose to look after her condition.

Funeral services for Mrs. Stafford were held at the family residence Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock with Rev. P. T. Ramsey of the First Methodist church officiating and the Coleman-Eplen undertaking firm directing the funeral with interment in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Death came to Mrs. Stafford suddenly, it is said, because at two o'clock in the morning one of the children had arisen to see if Mrs. Stafford was resting comfortably. When the family arose at a nearly hour she was dead.

For the past two years Mrs. Stafford had been almost an invalid having been injured from a fall. Physicians had told that she could probably never walk again, but her will power was a great factor and she overcame the handicap and was able to go about the home and other places.

When word was received that Mrs. Stafford had died, the city was universally in sorrow because of her death and the grief it brings to the aged husband, T. C. Stafford and the children.

Many friends gathered at the home to pay their tribute of respect. A chorus of voices from the First Methodist choir of which Mrs. Stafford was a long a member sang two hymns "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me." After reading scripture from the Methodist service book and offering a prayer, Rev. Ramsey paid tribute to the memory of deceased and well chosen and comforting words. He said he could speak in the most elaborate terms of praise and still be within the bounds of reason and truth when he spoke of her life.

He paid especial tribute to her sunny disposition which never failed and was a source of inspiration to all even in times of great stress and trouble. She was devoted to music, having been the organist in her church for some 20 years. After giving up this service she sang in the choir until her injury two years ago. She assisted with the Christmas music on Christmas eve two years ago and was injured the following day.

In summing up her outstanding characteristics, Rev. Ramsey said she was of a beautiful Christian character, that she was possessed of an unfolding disposition, that she was a devoted wife, a loving, tender mother and a wholesome, healthy, sanctified influence in the community.

Services were continued at the cemetery. The choir sang "Shall We Gather at the River?" after which a prayer was offered and then the benediction dismissed the crowd. A beautiful floral offering testified to the esteem with which Mrs. Stafford was held in Cameron.

Mrs. Stafford was born about sixty-seven years ago. About forty-two years ago she came to Cameron where she had lived ever since. On January 3, 1888 she was married to T. C. Stafford. Six children were born to this union, four of whom survive. She was converted and joined the Methodist church in Illinois during her girlhood days.

Immediate survivors are her husband, T. C. Stafford, two sons, W. H. and Howard Stafford; two daughters, Miss Glenn Stafford and Mrs. Juanita Stafford Lyons; and one grandson, Stafford Lyons.

Pall bearers were W. A. Bonds, T. A. Fisher, C. S. Peyton, Roy Baskin, Waiter Sharpe and Bob Philips.

Paul Webb Back From The Old North State

Paul Webb, city attorney, here returned from North Carolina. He spent the holidays with his wife and daughter who are there for their health.

Mr. Webb has many friends in Cameron who welcome his return.

Jim Sampson is reported ill at the home of his father, Tom Sampson.

Exactness Is Chief Aim in Manufacture Of New Ford Car

A million axle shafts, each one exactly like the other 999,999 within one thousandth of an inch—four million pistons fitting four million cylinders with a degree of exactness that all but staggers the imagination—many more millions of drilled and threaded holes, all placed with an accuracy of location that is incomprehensible to any but the mechanically or mathematically minded—and all these factors, combined with other millions of parts manufactured in widely separated units of a gigantic plant, meeting on an assembly line to fashion a million automobiles. This is the miracle that is modern mass production, the miracle that was conjured up by Mr. Henry Ford when he started his first automobile assembly line.

The story of how it is possible to make a million—or ten million, or twenty million, for that matter—of any machine part, each one identical with all its fellows, is a story of measurements. Just as that story of measurements explains the ability of the Ford Motor Company to produce fifteen million Model T automobiles, it also explains Mr. Ford's ability to produce the Model A in the same plants and by the same methods that made possible the pioneer Ford cars, yet at limits that are from 1.4 to 112 what they were on the Model T.

Today, in the Detroit plants, mechanics who have never looked thru the eye-piece of a microscope are measuring within limits too fine for any unaided eye to see. Model A parts machined to within one ten-thousandth part of an inch accuracy are all in the day's work. Back of this precision are something like a million gages that must be kept in correct adjustment at all times, and many thousands of these gages are in constant use throughout the Ford plants. There is no time for hand-fitting of inaccurate parts on the assembly line. They must either fit the first time or they are valueless. Therefore, the parts must leave the various machines which fashion them with every specified dimension correct. The result is that when put together, the car moves off the assembly line under its own power, a completed means of transportation requiring no special adjustments.

There are inspection and working gages to measure outside and inside diameters, lengths, widths, heights, angles, pitch diameter and lead of screw threads, which are in the hands of workmen throughout each day, testing and checking each part as it passes from machine to machine thru the plant. But these gages will wear or get slightly out of adjustment under constant use, therefore, they must be constantly watched. So behind them must be master gages of greater accuracy, for use as Standards. These master gages, the product of the C. E. Johansson Division of the Ford Motor Company are accurate within a millionth part of an inch.

Throughout the Ford plants inspectors are moving constantly, each with special hardened, ground and lapped rectangular steel blocks—Johansson Gages. These gage blocks are in special sizes to meet requirements of the workman's scrutiny; making it unnecessary for inspectors to make up combinations to measure different dimensions of length. A set of 81 gage blocks, such as is used in the tool rooms, can be combined to measure 120,000 different size lengths, from three-sixteenths inch to over twelve inches, and each of the 120,000 combination gages represent a variation of one-ten-thousandth part of an inch.

On some operations where the limits are close, the gages are changed every two to four hours to correct a wear of one ten-thousandth part of an inch which occurs in that time. Others are adjusted or changed at less frequent intervals, as frequency of use and amount of wear dictates.

In addition to their use in the production of Ford cars, trucks, airplanes and Lincoln automobiles, the Johansson gage blocks are the standard of the world for industrial precision measurement of length.

Chevrolet Sets New Production Record

With thousands of the new Chevrolet sixes daily being placed in the hands of owners, Chevrolet Motor Company announced officially here yesterday that production for the first ten and a half months of 1928 equalled 1,200,000 units. This figure it was said represented an increase of 180,000 units over 1927, the best previous year.

Month after month of last year found Chevrolet shattering all former production marks. Its all time record for monthly output occurred in May, when 140,775 units were produced. May stood out in the Chevrolet calendar also because it included the greatest single day's output in the company's 16 years of history. Seven thousand and seventy-five cars and trucks, completely finished, rolled off Chevrolet assembly lines May 28.

Coincident with the announcement of 1928 production figures, Chevrolet officials at the New York Automobile Show last week, were viewing with interest the continued enthusiasm that the crowds bestowed on the new sixes. Several ranking officials reiterated the statement made a few weeks ago by W. S. Knudsen, president, that 1929 production would equal at least 1,250,000 units. One of the salient tributes paid Chevrolet by visiting automobile men at the show involved the company's remarkable evolution from four cylinder to six cylinder production in the short space of a few weeks. Today all nine of Chevrolet's assembly plants are rapidly adjusting themselves to take care of peak schedules.

For the fourth time in as many years the sales department of Chevrolet at this time is sponsoring its annual series of nationwide sales meetings. The first of the series, which will be extended to include 35 cities, opened yesterday in New York. Three crews each composed of five men, all factory executives, will conduct the meetings. It is the purpose of the meetings to enable the Chevrolet dealer organization, numbering over 10,000 dealers, to hear from the lips of the company's sales heads the complete 1929 sales program.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher. "I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough T. C. C. training.

"At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In the big illustrated book, "Achieving Success in Business" are printed scores of stories of men and women who have reached success as a result of training. The book is free. No obligation. Won't you let us send you a copy? Just clip the coupon below and mail it today.

Senators From Texas

IN THE UNITED STATES
CONGRESS 1845-1930

Bl Alva O. Hearne
JOHN HEMPHILL
(1859-1861)

John Hemphill was born in the Chester district, South Carolina on December 18, 1803. He graduated from Jefferson College in Pennsylvania in 1825; located in Sumpter, S. C., where he edited a nullification paper during the years 1832-1833, and thereafter emigrated to Texas.

Hemphill was an astute lawyer and attained such eminence that upon the resignation of Judge Thomas J. Rusk in 1840 he was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the republic. He resigned that judgeship in 1842 to become adjutant general and accompanied General Somerville in the unfortunate Mier expedition to capture reprisals for Texans held as prisoners in Mexico.

He was a member of the convention of 1845 which adopted the ordinance of annexation and of the convention which framed the State Constitution. After the annexation of Texas to the United States, he was, in 1846, appointed chief justice of the State Supreme Court and held that position until elected to the United States Senate.

As General Sam Houston's term in the United States Senate would expire before the meeting of the State legislature in 1859, the legislature of 1857 elected his successor. The candidates before the legislature were John Hemphill and William S. Oldham, both of whom were known to be States Rights men with very strong Southern sentiments. Both resided in Austin.

Judge Hemphill was then chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas. Judge Oldham was a distinguished lawyer and a good political speaker. He had been on the supreme court bench in Arkansas before coming to Texas. Judge Hemphill had been chief justice of the republic and of the State of Texas for fifteen years continuously. Having held courts since 1851 in Austin, Galveston and Tyler, Judge Hemphill had a more extensive acquaintance in the State which gave him a decided advantage over Judge Oldham. Though scarcely known in Eastern Texas, Judge Oldham received a considerable vote in the legislature. Judge Hemphill was elected and took his seat in the United States Senate at the expiration of General Houston's term, March 4, 1859.

Judge Hemphill was one of the 14 Senators who, on January 6, 1861 met in caucus and adopted resolutions recommending to their States immediate secession. In the following February he was made a deputy to the Confederate provisional congress in Montgomery, Alabama. He and his colleague from Texas, Senator Louis T. Wigfall were expelled from the United States Senate by resolution adopted by that body on July 11, 1861.

During his extended career on the Supreme Court bench Judge Hemphill established many important precedents, and settled many questions which had been long in conflict in the Old States. He was one of the most learned of his time and one of his outstanding judicial achievements was his success in harmonizing the common and civil law elements of Texas jurisprudence.

Judge Hemphill was never married, though he was ever a champion of the widow and the orphan, a staunch advocate and protector of the legal rights of married women and invariably gave to laws regarding them a liberal construction. One of the decisions of an eminent judge styled him the great champion of the home-

The air we breathe is often full of germs, if our vitality is low we're an easy mark for colds or pneumonia.

One who has used the "Discovery", or "G. M. D.", writes thus: "North Little Rock, Ark.—"Dr. Pierce's Medicine have been a standby in my family and were in my father's family. When I feel the need of a tonic to build up my health in general, I always get satisfactory results from Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. stead rights in Texas. His name is indelibly inscribed upon the jurisprudence of the State.

He was not an orator, but his speech was logical and always presented a stern array of facts in pure, terse and incisive language. Those qualities are exhibited in his speech on the right of a state to withdraw from the Union, delivered in the Senate in January 1861. In that speech he showed that Texas, having been an independent Republic of good standing among the nations at the time of its annexation, would, in withdrawing from the Union, only resume that sovereignty and independence which she had laid aside when she entered it. In answer to charges of ingratitude then made upon Texas in view of her threatened secession, he showed that the State was not in any way responsible for the Mexican war, and that it was not waged by the United States even for the benefit of Texas.

Judge Hemphill died in Richmond, Virginia on January 4, 1862. His remains were brought to Austin and interred in the State Cemetery, where they repose by the side of those of some of his judicial associates.

MARLOW

The Senior B. Y. P. U. of Marlow enjoyed a social Saturday evening January 5, given by Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Coward at their home in Cameron. During the evening many interesting games were played. Solos were played and sung by Rev. W. A. Criswell of Waco and Mrs. Coward. Later in the evening hot chocolate and cake was served.

Mrs. E. E. Allison and son, Junior are up after an attack of the flu.

Miss Lavena Sheguit left last Friday to resume her studies in Draughtons Business College at San Antonio after spending the holidays with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Sheguit.

John Todaro of Chicago, Ill., has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Coward the past two weeks.

Sunday, January 13 has been set aside as B. Y. P. U. Day at Marlow. There will be an all day session and after the weekly B. Y. P. U. program at six o'clock Rev. W. A. Criswell, pastor will preach a sermon suitable for the occasion. Everybody is urged to come and especially the young people.

Mrs. Leslie Boatright is ill with the flu this week.

Rev. W. A. Criswell of Waco spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Coward of Cameron.

Mr. and Mrs. Emmitt May visited Mr. and Mrs. N. Y. Hayes last week.

William Lewis Mode is on the sick list this week.

"I can heartily recommend Cardui, because I have found it so helpful," declares Mrs. Norton Smith, of Warrenton, Georgia.

"I was very much run-down, and was hardly able to get about.

"I could not sleep at night, and was in a highly nervous condition. Nothing seemed to help me, and I was almost in despair. I decided to try Cardui and sent for a bottle.

"I soon began to improve. I got so I could eat. My appetite was good. My nerves got stronger, and I was able to sleep well at night.

"I picked up in weight and my color was much better."

Cardui is sold by all druggists. Try it.

In The Realm of Sports

By LEE R. TAG

The man that made sporting spectacles popular with high class society is dead. His name was "Tex" Rickard and his name was known wherever sport followers met. His passing at Miami, Florida this week was indeed a blow to all sports. Although "Tex" was best known in the fist world, the other branches of sport knew him well, for in his noted Madison Square Garden many other sporting shows were held.

He was a man that dabbled in hundreds of thousands and staked that much on the outcome of a throw of a pair of dice yet everybody who had any dealings with him or had a contract with him knew that he kept his word. He always paid his fighters whether he won or lost and that is something that can't be said of many sport promoters.

Incidentally and without any criticism Mr. Rickard said that of the many fighters he had helped to make not one had even so much as given him a cigar for his troubles. He wonders if this could be called ingratitude.

The basketball season in the Southwestern Conference is in full swing now and fans will see some lively competition among the basketballers. The Arkansas Razorbacks seem due to repeat even though the Mustangs gave them a lively battle last week. Walker's Texas Longhorns do not seem to be in their best form at present because the Daniel Baker Hill Billies were nearly too much for them while the Baylor Bears found it tough going with a weaker Texas Conference team.

A. & M. has secured the services of Matty Bell of T. C. U. as their football coach and the Aggies are sure to be in the running for the title next year. Bell will more than likely report to College in time for spring training.

It won't be long now until the familiar crack of the horsehide against willow will be heard in the training camps of the big leaguers. Texas fans will be given an opportunity to see some of the big stars in action. There will be games in Dallas and Ft. Worth and it is likely that other towns will be hosts to the representatives of the big show.

A few holdouts are in evidence at this stage of the season and some ball players will find that they no longer have a berth on a team but most of the big boys will be on the job at the beginning of the season.

It will be of interest to the Cameron fans to know that "Red" Bogus of Comet fame a few years ago has signed up with the Dallas Steers. Bogus has the distinction of being a player who can fill all positions on the diamond and fill them well. He will more than likely be used as a catcher on the Dallas club. He was the first to sign their contract.

Not so long ago, Bogges played a game in which he changed positions every inning. This is quite a remarkable feat because it usually takes a player some time to become acclimated to the position he is to play. Be it said to "Red's" credit that he played each position well in the aforesaid game.

In addition to being quite a ball player, Bogus is no slouch on the basketball court. As a forward, he has no superior in the State. In a game some years ago when he was playing for the Y. M. C. A. of Waco, his team was playing the Southwestern University Pirates at Georgetown. It was his sensational goal from the middle of the court that won the game for his team.

"Pancho" Snyder has been signed as manager of the Houston Buffs next season and he hopes to duplicate the feat of winning the Texas League flag and the Dixie Series. He is going to have a hard job ahead of him unless the Cardinal bosses see fit to send him some good material. One more good pitcher to the Buff staff would be a decided help as well as a good hitting outfield. The infield seems at present to be adequate for all present demands. No one seems to know just what the disagreement between Ankeman and Snyder was all about and it may flare up later in the season and this is enough to ruin any club.

The Dallas Steers will be in there next season and the new management ought to be able to make them pennant contenders. Dallas has some very good material but they don't deliver in the pinches and that is what counts. The Dallas fans will support a winning club and the owners know that. All the more reason for a good club.

The Superfex OIL BURNING Refrigerator

The Most Economical Refrigerator Ever Built.

COSTS TWO CENTS PER DAY OPERATION

Think of What You Can Save

Now for the first time, with the invention of the marvelous Superfex Oil-burning Refrigerator, you can enjoy modern refrigeration in your home no matter how far you may be from central station electric power and other conveniences.

The Superfex turns the heat from a pint of kerosene—costing two cent—into 24 hours of effective refrigeration.

Once a day you "Light it and leave it." No further attention is required. The burners do the work silently and about an hour and a quarter and go out automatically, but the refrigeration goes on. There are no moving parts, no valves—nothing to get out of order.

The Superfex is built for healthful refrigeration and guaranteed to give lasting service. The food compartment lining is one piece steel, white porcelain enameled, the finest that can be made. Food racks rest on tracks that are pressed into lining—no screw holes, no seams or joints, rounded corners, easy to keep clean.

WYMAN SMELLEY

College Station, Texas, Jan. 5.—Texas will always be a land of plenty and Texas farmers won't be in need of much relief if the next generation of farmers follows the lead set by the twenty-three 4-H Club boys of Texas who won prize trips to Chicago this winter on their crop production, livestock and poultry records. Battling with yields and gains and profits these boys emerged victorious in a fight for high honors with more than 17,900 other club boys to represent the Lone Star State at the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago during the International Live Stock Exposition.

Officials of the Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas, announced that records of these outstanding young farmers showed the yields of cotton to the acre varied from a bale to more than three bales, a corn club boy made 154 bushels to the acre, a milo maize member gathered nearly three tons of threshed grain off one acre, a sweet potato club acre made 220 bushels, a pig club boy made a net profit of $240 on a litter, a boy with turkeys cleared $510 from a start of eight turkey hens last February, a

SHERIFF'S SALE

The State of Texas,
County of Milam,

Whereas, on the 16th day of November A. D., 1928, in a certain cause numbered 1001 on the docket of the District Court of said county, wherein the State of Texas is plaintiff and Henry F. Lippman, Bertha Lynch and Eunice Dill are defendants, the said plaintiff recovered judgment in the amount of Two Hundred thirty-five and 88-100 dollars for taxes, and legal amount penalties, costs and interests computed thereon, together with the foreclosure of plaintiff's delinquent tax liens upon the property herein-

Monday night of last week at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. A. Thomas of this city quite a number of Cameron's fairest young ladies and handsome young gentlemen, according to invitation assembled for a social entertainment. The entertainment was announced as a "Ghost Party," each young lady present was supposed to bring with her ghost paraphernalia and attire herself as such at the hour designated by the host and hostess. So at the hour of 11:30 after a delightful luncheon had been served the time came for the ghost to appear, the young ladies repaired upstairs to attire themselves in ghost costume, while the young men waited in the parlor the arrival of the ghosts. To add to the frightfulness of the scene the electric lights were turned off and the young ladies on entering the room took seats in the middle with white sheets and wearing dark masks to escape detection. Each person so disguised were numbered and when the hostess would call out a number the one having that number would rise and relate a ghost story. Many were the thrilling and blood-curdling stories that were told, while the young gentlemen would stand idly by, with pencil and paper in hand, endeavoring to guess who the persons were by their voices and the gentlemen that came nearest guessing the entire number would win a prize. It was soon learned that the most successful guesser was Oxsheer Smith. Walter McGregor, on behalf of the host and hostess and those present, in a few appropriate remarks presented the prize to Mr. Smith, who responded thanking them for the honor they had conferred upon him.

after described as the property of the defendants, because of non-payment of the taxes due thereon;

And whereas, on the 4th day of January, A. D. 1929, by virtue of the said judgment and the mandates thereof, the Clerk of the District court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale, commanding me as Sheriff of said County to seize, levy upon and sell in the manner and form as required by law the hereinafter described property as the property of the above defendants, to satisfy the said judgment.

Wherefore, by virtue of the said Order of Sale and the mandate thereof, I did on the 5th day of January

A. D. 1929, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant, the following property, to-wit:

98 1-2 acres of land on the David Gallagher League in Milam County Texas, and beginning at the N. W. corner of the Common 50 acre tract, same being the N. And I will on the first Tuesday in the month of February A. D., 1929, the same being the 5th day of said month, proceed to sell said property at the Court House door of said county, in the city of Cameron, between the hours of 2 o'clock p. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title and interest of the above defendants, in and to the above described property; subject, however, to the rights of the defendants, to redeem same in the time and manner provided for by law, and subject to the further rights of the defendants to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole. And in event there are no bidders, said property will at said sale be bid off to the State.

Your Community is in the very heart of America's Greatest Natural Gas Belt —and NATURAL GAS Attracts Industries — Builds Cities!

DID YOU know that you live right in the heart of the greatest natural gas belt in the country?

Think what this means to you.

Of course it means that you enjoy at low rates the blessing of natural gas—the ideal cooking and heating fuel—for home use.

But it means more than that.

It means growing communities, with constantly increasing property values, because this great natural resource of abundant natural gas attracts industries.

Heat is the heart of industry. Industry inevitably follows fuel resources. Industry is already being attracted to the great Southwest because of its vast natural gas production.

You have other resources—but the most distinctive—the most important—is natural gas. You're "sitting on top of the world" as far as natural gas is concerned!

And Lone Star Gas Company, as one of the oldest, largest and strongest of the gas pipe line companies operating in the great Southwest natural gas belt, is always on the alert to make the rich resource of natural gas maximally beneficial to your community—and to you.

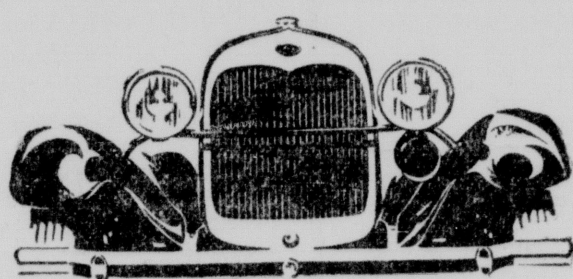

This map, based on a map published by H. J. Struth in Natural Gas Magazine, shows in black the principal natural gas producing areas of the country. The Southwest produces three times the amount of natural gas produced by the great California natural gas belt, and practically twice as much as the widely scattered eastern natural gas fields taken as a unit.

...PIPED FROM THE WELLS TO YOUR CITY

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would become overheated and the pistons refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large, with four rows of tubes set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air. The fan is of the airplane propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather, a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

Hose connections may also need replacement after long service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a thorough, competent job at a fair price.

HEROES OF TODAY

The education of a boy is not merely a matter of schooling and discipline. The boy himself does more than his teachers to lay the deeper foundations of his life in the hours he spends with his heroes, who teach him ideals and ambitions and write their message deep in his heart. These heroes, mythical and shadowy though they be, have power over him and gain his love and confidence and the bent and fiber of his character will inevitably reflect their inspiration.

It used to be that knights of old or spectacular heroes of pioneer days were the boon companions of the youthful spirit. But the daily newspaper in every household has wrought its miracle even with the boy. His heroes today are on the front pages of the paper; they are athletes, soldiers and sailors, aviators and explorers and men everywhere who give their strength or hazard their lives in some deed of usefulness and sacrifice.

Boy nature demands heroes and the boy's heroes today are of his own generation and very much alive in the world with him. He may see them, hear their voices and follow their story from day to day. The picture of Lindbergh hangs on the wall of countless boys' bedrooms; they can read the book he has written and catch a glimpse of him as he rides his swift steed above the cities of America. The wise parent and teacher will encourage such a hero worship, so that the torch of high empire may one day pass to hands that are ready for it.

LIBERTY

If Patrick Henry, when he said "Give me liberty or give me death," had been asked to define liberty by the particular restraints which he found more grievous to be borne than death itself, he would doubtless have named such as those which a few months later were recited in the Declaration of Independence. Yet while the specific complaints were laid against "a prince whose character was marked by any act which may define a tyrant," there was no clear definition of the liberty which, second to life itself was declared to be the inalienable right with which the Creator has endowed all men.

The Bill of Rights give assurance to the individual of the preservation of his liberty, but they do not define the liberty they promise. Herein lies the cause of much strife and the basis for marked differences in opinion.

Somewhere the line must be drawn, for liberty is in the most literal sense the negation of the law, law being restraint and the absence of all restraint anarchy. To fix the line which will give both the individual and the group scope and opportunity for harmonious development is the overshadowing problem of liberty and law. Lawmakers have yet to learn to consider personal liberty when protecting public rights and to consider public rights when protecting personal liberty. To be good legislation laws must offend neither.

THE HITCH-HIKER

Hitch-hiking has become so common that the average motorist, even if he is taking only a short trip, is almost certain to be hailed several times and asked for a ride. If he hurries on, he is followed by imprecations.

Unfortunately, if the motorist is soft-hearted and gives the stranger free passage he may find that he has picked up trouble. If he has an accident and his self-invited guest is injured, he may be sued for damages. If he is no more lucky than a number whose adventures have been reported he may find that he is entertaining a bandit during the latter's working hours.

There are thousands of men who buy tour, or commute, and neither buy gasoline nor pay railroad fare. If these were to pay their way, either the railroads or the automobile industry, or both, would prosper. And not all of them beg transportation by necessity.

Most car owners are reluctant to see hitch-hiking outlawed because of the opportunities it offers school boys to see their country, but the practice has long since attained the proportions of a public nuisance. Many municipalities are curbing it, but beyond their corporate limits the vagabond, modern style, is at liberty to jerk his thumb off without molestation.

Enthusiastic Boosting

Communities and individuals are alike in many respects. One of the outstanding attributes each must possess, to be a success, is enthusiasm. Community enthusiasm is furnished, and abetted, through the co-operation of the individuals composing the community. But first, we must have the enthusiastic individual.

Enthusiasm is contagious. With it a man can arouse his fellow beings and make them to do his bidding. With it he can lead routed armies to victory. With Napoleon dominated his generals and armies until they absorbed the enthusiasm he possessed.

Enthusiasm should be cultivated, and nurtured, until it dominates the individual and his community. The more enthusiastic we become. However, unless combined with other desirable qualities such as foresight, ability, honesty and industry, it has but intrinsic value. With these qualities to bolster it, there is presented a combination hard to beat.

Let your enthusiasm become contagious. Don't knock. Boost.

Yours for a bigger and better and brighter and busier Cameron.

Hail to the "Coffee Johns"

The other day a hot-dog wagon took its place in the Ford Museum in Detroit beside the first Model T and the ten millionth car.

"Coffee John" used to own that wagon and Henry Ford used to eat there when he was a mechanic. Across its counter Ford outlined his plans for a "horseless carriage" to the sympathetic owner, and "Coffee John" lent the money that carried the struggling company over a crisis.

Delve into history of almost any great company and you will find a "Coffee John" who boosted at the right time. Too frequently they are like Lawrence, the designer of Lindbergh's engine, who, when asked why he was so reticent, remarked, "Who ever heard of Paul Revere's horse?"

Lukewarm Souls

The quality of the captain of this comment serves admirably for those who, with diplomatic nicety strive to please everybody or at least the greatest number. Some timorous people hesitate to come out flat-footed and face real issues. They mildly hold to certain convictions, of course, but endeavor to suit their conversations and actions when abroad in the world to the popular beliefs of their fellows.

It is not always an ulterior motive that prompts a man who has been educated in a certain orthodox manner or school of belief to become so "broad" that he readily admits people holding directly opposite views to those he has been taught or learned for himself, are not only absolutely correct themselves hold no small measure of in their opinions but that the views merit. This strange mental contortion can in a great many instances be attributed to the fact that Mr. Mild Mannered Man desires to insure his own popularity by ardently supporting the beliefs of his friends and associates, no matter how contradictory these may be to his own honest convictions.

A lukewarm man seeking to ingratiate himself into the favor of everybody, and in so doing sacrificing principle and conviction, is indeed skating upon thin ice for public favor is a tricky and changing siren and the world at large, after all, has little or no use for a man with an India rubber back-bone.

aid. Mr. Kenney is now standing before the assembled delegates, a copy of the charges in his hand. Outside the building his voice comes with an occasional distinctness. We hear him say:

"I believe I am conversant with God and if I love him he must be better than I am." This is thought to be an amplification of his views regarding the orthodox view of hell fire and damnation.

"Gentlemen, we live in the 20th century. Has the time come when a minister cannot stand in his pulpit and declare to his people the truth?" The wind is growing stronger and the traffic noises shut out from hearing the drama inside.

"If those who believe in the doctrine of total depravity—" again it is lost. Now, again, we hear him say: "I resist it with all the resources of an awakened conscience. Man is a mixture of good and evil, not all good, not all bad. God could have elected to reveal Himself in an adult, no doubt, but the sweet innocence of a babe on that night and the stars—" again it is lost.

"I have never impugned the honesty or integrity of my fellow citizens, what I said was this—" Sensing the dramatic appeal, the sincere, courageous utterance of a flaming heart, the press writers say many things derogatory to executive sessions and wait with patience as the cold wind sweeps the leaves about the building. Then again: "I am confronted with vague, indistinct, dim and poorly written charges. Not one time have they talked with me when these things were fresh on my mind. Not once have they mentioned these matters to me."

Detail Is Unknown

Although we are not to know just what is taking place, we gather in general what is taking place. Mr. Kenney has been charged with criticizing Jesus. "They tell me in Cameron my greatest sermons have been woven about the Master in which I expressed all the sweetness of reverent devotion my heart commands."

Another charge is that Mr. Kenney has advised young men to shun the ministry. We gather that he is saying that unless the orthodoxy stays its attempted moratorium over the minds of searching intellect no spirit may be free or mind map the wilderness of hidden things.

And this seems to be all that we get just here. The session goes on into the late hours of afternoon and soon the shadows begin to gather. Lights flicker along the streets and pedestrians are going along to their homes. They stop with curious gaze to fathom if they may the strange scene that is enacted here. They have read and everywhere interest seems to be excited. Heresy has not been heard of since the bitter days of 15th century orthodox theological ascendancy. Maybe our minds run back to the orgies of the period of Calvin and his contemporary Luther when a new freedom of authority led the ignorant and the fanatic to violence against the Golden Rule doctrine. Maybe our minds are comforted that somehow the Sermon on the Mount has found fal-low ground in the awakened conscience which is the vehicle of civilization. Good thoughts for newspaper writers, no doubt, but strange. This thing about theology is uncommon to many of us. We can't set it down in our accustomed way with news writing. Wonder what Jesus would say if he knew about this thing, or is it right, or what?

Excerpts Are Scored

Consistent with his attitude all along Mr. Kenney deplored that charges were made based upon excerpts, totally out of contact with theme and thought of his sermons. He had told the press that it was his belief that this had been done. He reiterated this belief to the members of the press. "I see," said a representative of a certain metropolitan daily. "It is like this. In Joshua 8:29 it says: 'And the King of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide' and in the writings of Paul we find these words: 'Go thou and do likewise.' This was a truly significant parallel absurdity and all enjoyed with good humor the penetration of the correspondent.

Clippings Thrown Out

Co-extant with the opening of the session it was learned that newspaper clippings, interviews and all sorts of newspaper writings possible to obtain, including the garbled report of a sermon reported about which Mr. Kenney expressed regret, were placed before the assembly and offered as evidence. These clippings and printings were not admitted and their disposition was perhaps the only "burning" of the day.

Contrary to a printed statement in a Waco newspaper on the day before the hearing in which it was said that Mr. Kenney had charged that the newsmen lacked the intelligence to quote him correctly, following the close of the hearing it was explained that Mr. Kenney never made such a statement. He thanked the press for its uniform courtesy.

Investigation Closes

Shortly after five o'clock the investigation came to a close with the appointment of the committee. Belief is expressed coupled with statements by retiring delegates that the matter had been settled "for the glory of the cause and in justice to all." Dr. McMurray said: "While I do not wish to be quoted, the Presbytery now has a different feeling toward Mr. Kenney. His defense was really a brilliant thing. The whole matter seems to have been in the nature of a general misunderstanding. The committee is to confer with Mr. Kenney sometime between this date and the general assembly in the spring."

It seems that all charges were answered satisfactory by Mr. Kenney but it must be remembered, he insists, that he has not in any way receded from his position on the matters under discussion. It follows as logical, then, that Mr. Kenney convinced the Presbytery that his utterances have not been at variance with truth or with any of the essentials of the faith. One matter of disagreement, however remains to be cleared up. It is possible that this has reference to the resurrection doctrine.

History reveals that Ann Pennington was run into the forest among savages for asking a question about this doctrine. It may be that the matter will be decided on a satisfactory agreement as to which is the more important the manner or form of the resurrection or the fact of it. Mr. Kenney is known to attach greater significance to the fact.

Speaks at Length

Almost continuously Mr. Kenney kept the floor during the afternoon session. During more than two hours he read and answered the charges. After concluding he invited questions and answered all put to him. Tired and worn from the ordeal thru which he had gone, beginning some months ago and ending here today, he went with friends to a hotel where newspaper writers who could not see him earlier in the day met and discussed the matters with him. He did not break the rule of secrecy placed upon him by the executive session but answered many questions, mostly concerning his life and what he would preach about next Sunday.

"I don't know what I will preach about. Really I did not know whether I would preach at all. You may say that I am more than gratified at the outcome of the investigation," he concluded when informed of the statement of Dr. McMurray that practically all matters had been settled to the satisfaction of the Presbytery.

COULD YOU HAVE BELIEVED IT?

If you positively knew you could have $50.00 cash, a thorough business training, a good position and seven months experience if trained in a Byrne College as against no cash, no job or experience if trained in another school, which school would you attend? The answer is easy, but how are you going to convince yourself that a Byrne Commercial College has these great advantages? Here's how. Ask three students that have graduated in the combined course of bookkeeping and shorthand in any other school, if twelve months is not a fair average time to graduate in a school teaching Gregg Shorthand and 20th Century Bookkeeping, then ask three who have graduated in a Byrne Commercial College in the Famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping if four and one-half months is not a fair average time to graduate. Also get the catalogues of the other schools and Byrne's and compare their course of Bookkeeping and Shorthand and time required with Byrne. The Byrne student graduates in four and one-half months, the other in twelve months. Time saved by Byrne, seven and one-half months. Put the time saved by Byrne at a low salary and you will have earned from $500 to $700, and by the use of the famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping taught exclusively in Texas in the three Byrne Colleges under the direction of the author you have not only been given the most modern, thorough, practical training to be had in seven and one-half months less time, but you have seven and one-half months valuable experience and a good position.

Business men prefer Byrne trained office help. Byrne trained students are holding the most responsible bookkeeping, shorthand, secretarial and accounting positions at the best salaries, in the large cities where big business is found. If you can secure and hold the best paying position with four

WHAT WE THINK

By FRANK DIXON

Test of the Educated Man

"The educated man," says Dean Inge of England, "is a man with certain subtle spiritual qualities which make him calm in adversity, happy when alone, just in his dealings and rational and sane on all affairs of life."

But how, we would query the good dean, does he act when company calls along about bed time?

The bride is given away; the bridegroom sold.

It always helps out a chestnut of a story considerably to have the realtor punch you in the ribs and spit in your ear.

Maybe your church is like mine. We always have had a member who would put up if he liked the preacher, but if he did not, he stayed away and pouted and saved that much money.

The trouble with a lot of new brooms is that they invade strange lands with the idea that the denizens thereof are a bunch of rubes who don't know the earth is round, and are 400 years behind the times. At the present stage of the game no community is over 20 years behind the times.

The dean of Wisconsin University says what is needed is a non-political study of the whole farm situation. Yeah? And then let's have one of the whole human situation while we're loafing.

An advertisement reads: "You get the girl—we furnish the rest.—The Winchester Supply Co." We aren't quite sure we'd be comfortable, even with the gentlest of brides, in a house too well supplied with Winchester goods.

This is just a guess of course, but maybe what the kidnapers who swiped the Canadian brewer wanted, was to make him tell how long to let the stuff bubble before bottling it.

The Greely Advocate says: "We saw something that we never saw in a small town before, last Saturday. One of our doctors walked up to his competitor, shook hands and passed a few pleasant remarks."

There is really much tenderness in this cruel world, but the butcher rarely finds it.

A German inventor has invented an alarm clock that bites the sleeper. All those who have tried to sleep on Sunday mornings with a fly buzzing here and there know what an infernal machine it must be.

I just read where a newspaper man in charge of his paper's question box was asked the two following questions:

1. What shall I do for twins who are getting their first teeth?
2. What shall I do to rid my squash of bugs?

In answering he got the answers mixed. To the first question he wrote "Cover pests up with straw and burn and in a few days will be O. K." To the squash problem he wrote, "Rub paregoric on their teeth and they will be all right in a few days."

What Is Important

Today. What more so? What can be more vital than living, sensing, acting today, living sanely, safely, helpfully, comfortably and cheerfully?

To live well today is important because it is our only day. Tomorrow may come, of course, but it has no such consequence as today with its duties, its loves, its sufferings, endurings, unfoldings and making a life. Or making a life is more important than making a living, if we but had the courage instead of the desperation of the urgent moment.

A rational life is important as keeping body, the instrument of mundane expression, wholesome and efficient; supplementing Nature's endeavor, or the body is merely a loan from the material elements that is reluctantly returned through death, a beneficent change we mostly fear and shrink away from; a shedding off as a cocoon; a moulting as of a bird its plumage; a change for a new suit with possible beauties of feature and form wrought by precedent pain, experience and active co-operation with Nature in unfolding individuality and character.

Life is continuous and unending; else, how fatuous that it began!

Some creatures of the "lower orders" if they lose a limb, promptly reproduce a new limb quite as capable as the one lost. This typifies our fate; we lay aside one body and produce another form the mysterious elements available, shaped and modeled by forces existent, evoked by and earned thru previous thoughts and aspirations. Individuality is compulsorily evolutionary. It is inevitable, impelling, propelling, compelling towards continuous unfolding. God is good.

TEXANS! let's talk Texas

—and make 1929
the most active
year Texas has ever experienced

THIS IS an appeal to every Texan to study closely and understand thoroughly the possibilities of his state, and to pass on this understanding to every person with whom he comes in contact, so that everyone who seeks a location for a home, an office or a factory will know exactly what Texas has to offer him. Then Texas will ascend to her just place of leadership. But we must talk Texas—all the time.

Manufacturing must move to the doorways of large markets, where raw material, favorable transportation facilities, taxes and labor supply combine with abundant and economical electric power to afford ideal locations.

Texas cities and towns served by this Company supply each of these needs for a host of industries, but, since physical advantages do not always determine the selection of industrial locations, certain other vital things must be thrown into the balance.

Sound exploitation must be persistently used. The manner in which Texas tells its story will determine its industrial accomplishments in 1929.

The Texas Power & Light Company, employing several hundreds of Texas men and women, endeavors to give each of them a clear conception of the natural resources of Texas and to impress upon them the importance of their development. Basically the purpose of this Company is to render an electric service to a large number of Texas cities and towns.

Having done this, and having charted courses of growth that anticipate vast developments in the Texas of tomorrow, this Company feels that its duty to Texas extends still deeper. Therefore it is telling the story of Texas' advantages to industries through the use of paid advertising in sectional and national trade magazines. The purpose of this advertising is to stimulate the movement of industries to Texas.

For sixteen years the Texas Power & Light Company has worked not only to serve an appreciative public but to help build a greater State.

Texans! Let's make 1929 the greatest year of sound development Texas has ever had.

Use Oversize Tires For More Mileage

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to Horstmann Brothers of Cameron, Firestone dealers.

"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up.'

"Oversizing allows a much greater margin of safety and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.

"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile, means economy. In tires as in everything else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

METHODIST CHURCH

We called in our services last Sunday. Conditions seem to be improving. All services will be held next Sunday on the usual schedule.

Those who are well are urged to come and help make up for lost time. Our building will be comfortable. The work of the church is supremely important. It needs the attention of all who desire to see it succeed.

The Sunday School will convene at 9:45; the Epworth Juniors will meet at 2:30. The Seniors and the Epworth Hi's at 6:00.

The pastor will preach at 11:00 and 7:00.

CHRISTMAS SEAL NOTIFICATION

Noting the fact that a number of recipients of Christmas Seals have overlooked mailing their checks for same or returning the seals, the undersigned committee will greatly appreciate attention to this matter.

Immediately after Christmas, the proceeds to date were forwarded to Texas Public Health Association and sincere thanks extended to those who had helped in this health work.

We now await final returns that we may complete our work for Cameron as soon as possible.

COULD YOU HAVE BELIEVED IT?

If you positively knew you could have $50.00 cash, a thorough business training, a good position and seven months experience if trained in a Byrne College as against no cash, no job or experience if trained in another school, which school would you attend? The answer is easy, but how are you going to convince yourself that a Byrne Commercial College has these great advantages? Here's how. Ask three students that have graduated in the combined course of bookkeeping and shorthand in any other school, if twelve months is not a fair average time to graduate in a school teaching Gregg Shorthand and 20th Century Bookkeeping, then ask three who have graduated in a Byrne Commercial College in the Famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping if four and one-half months is not a fair average time to graduate. Also get the catalogues of the other schools and Byrne's and compare their course of Bookkeeping and Shorthand and time required with Byrne. The Byrne student graduates in four and one-half months, the other in twelve months. Time saved by Byrne, seven and one-half months. Put the time saved by

Byrne at a low salary and you will have earned from $500 to $700, and by the use of the famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping taught exclusively in Texas in the three Byrne Colleges under the direction of the author you have not only been given the most modern, thorough, practical training to be had in seven and one-half months less time, but you have seven and one-half months valuable experience and a good position.

Business men prefer Byrne trained office help. Byrne trained students are holding the most responsible bookkeeping, shorthand, secretarial and accounting positions at the best salaries, in the large cities where big business is found. If you can secure and hold the best paying position with four and one-half months training in a Byrne College why spend twelve months in some school not permitted to teach the famous Byrne system? Byrne scholarships are sold under a money back guarantee. Get the Byrne bookkeeping and shorthand in one-half the time and one-half the cost of others.

Byrne Colleges operate three free employment service departments for the placing of all their graduates. Write for catalogue today. Investigate, you are entitled to the best. Byrne Commercial College, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. H. E. Byrne, president. 37-3tc

Commercial Club

Roll call showed the following present: C. S. Peyton, J. D. Dobbins, W. M. Cobb, F. S. Lesovsky, W. H. Shipp, J. W. Coleman, W. O. Newton, C. W. Lawrence, T. A. Fisher, Dr. James Watson, Dan Tyson, E. S. Hutcherson, T. S. Henderson, Jr., and Willard Reese.

Mr. Henderson stressed the need of tick eradication in order to promote the dairy interests and offered a motion that a committee be appointed to call upon the Commissioner's Court and urge that steps be taken as quickly as possible to have Milam county or as much of it as possible made tick free. Carried. President Peyton appointed the following named on this committee: T. S. Henderson, Jr., F. S. Lesovsky and Willard Reese.

C. W. Lawrence suggested that it would be a big help to the dairy movement if steps were taken to finance people who desired to buy more and better cows. On motion duly made and carried the president was authorized to appoint and appointed the following committee: Moulton Cobb, F. E. Jackson and J. C. Tucker.

Mr. Reese reported that Rockdale, Thorndale and Rosebud were co-operating with the Milk Products Company and farmers in those sections who desired to buy good cows were given the necessary financial aid. He also related that Taylor Chamber of Commerce was putting on a dairy school and found it to be a fine thing.

Mr. Coleman stated that one of our preachers had told him that there was more poverty in Milam county than he ever found in any other place and he looked upon the dairy movement as the best plan to rid the county of poverty.

Mr. Fisher said that there was an obligation resting upon the shoulders of every citizen to help in this movement for the general good.

Mr. Lesovsky said, "I have made up my mind to help the dairy movement in every way possible. Not so that the factory may make money, but to do what I can to make Milam county farmers more prosperous and independent."

There being no further business the meeting adjourned and attended the annual venison feast at the Newport Cafe.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher.

"I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough T. C. C. training.

"At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In the big illustrated book, "Achieving Success in Business" are printed scores of stories of men and women who have reached success as a result of training. The book is free. No obligation. Won't you let us send you a copy? Just clip the coupon below and mail it today.

SIN

LESSON TEXT—1 John 1:5-2:6.

GOLDEN TEXT—If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Grieving God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Grieving God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Sin is and Does.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sin and its Consequences.

There is much disparity between the subject and the Scripture unit selected for study. Since the plan is to present the subject topically, using the many texts, it is proper that we should first give a definition of sin.

The etymology of the word translated sin in both the Hebrew and the Greek signifies "to deviate from the way—to miss the mark"; therefore a going aside. Failure to measure up to a standard is sin. Sin is also the transgression of the law (1 John 3:4). The positive meaning then is that sin is a transgression of the law. Deeper than all this is the condition of the soul, out of which all thought and actions spring. This is called by Paul concupiscence (Rom. 7:7, 8).

I. The Origin of Sin (Gen. 3:1-24). Man was placed on probation in the Garden of Eden. This was necessary because Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. This he could get only through testing. Free will, alternative choice, which Adam possessed as a creature bearing the likeness and image of God, made character possible and inevitable.

Character is the resultant of choice. The means used was most simple. God issued just one prohibition. Alongside the tree of good and evil was the tree of life. Satan, a personal being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind and appealed to innocent appetite. She gazed upon and lusted after that which God had forbidden. Following this, she involved Adam in her sin. From this account we see that sin originated, so far as the race is concerned, in the free choice of the head of the race, and through the law of heredity has passed upon all mankind.

II. The Universality of Sin (Rom. 3:10-18).

By the use of numerous quotations from the Scriptures, Paul proves that every member of the race is guilty of sin. He does not admit of an exception.

III. The Fate of Sinners (Gen. 6:5-8).

The disobedience of man greatly displeased God and He resolved to destroy man from the face of the earth. God's nature is such that sin must be punished.

IV. The Source of Sin (Mark 7:14-23).

All evil thinking and practice spring out of the heart of man. The heart stands for the very center and foundation of the personality. The reason men think vile thoughts is because of their vile nature, which is the result of original sin.

V. The Sins of Believers (1 John 1:5-2:6).

1. How perceived (v. 5). God is here declared to be light. Therefore sin is perceived through the glorious light of the Divine being. No one can see God without seeing himself a vile sinner. To claim fellowship with God while walking in darkness is the lie of life.

2. The Divine remedy for sin (v. 7). It is the blood of Jesus Christ. Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin.

3. The believer's responsibility (v. 9).

It is to confess his sin. It is only when we are conscious of our sins in the light of God that we are disposed to make confession of them.

4. God grants forgiveness and cleansing (vv. 9, 10).

Because of His provision in the atonement of Jesus Christ, God is able on the basis of justice to forgive the sinner who confesses his sin. Because of His faithfulness in dealing with His children on the basis of the finished work of Christ, He not only forgives, but He cleanses them from all sin.

5. Christ the believer's advocate (2:1, 2).

For believers to sin is not necessary, but the advocate who champions his cause in case of sin is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, who on Calvary's cross made a propitiation for his sin.

6. Christ's followers obey Him (v. 5). Those who have experienced God's saving grace render obedience to His Word.

The Love of Christ

A stream can rise no higher than its source. It takes the love of Christ coming into a man's heart to raise him above himself, sweep away the sins he cannot conquer, and fill him with peace and power.

Wealth

Wealth is a weak anchor and cannot support a man; this is the word of God, that virtue only is firm cannot be shaken by a tempest.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mayes

Lively Session Expected

If any dependence can be placed in pre-legislative whisperings, the January legislative session will be the liveliest since the impeachment of Governor Ferguson. It is expected that the early days of the session will be devoted largely to oil lease matters in connection with the University lands in West Texas and to inquiries into the reasons prompting the land commissioner to advertise the leasing of some 103,000 acres of land for oil development a few days in advance of the legislative session that is expected to amend the present lease law and why some advertised leases were withdrawn at the request of the governor and on the advice of the attorney-general's department that it could be done, while others were not. Before this departmental turmoil is settled, the legislature will likely be busy in efforts to adopt many corrective measures in connection with the administration of State affairs.

Waste of Public Money

It is the opinion of some legislators that there is too much waste of the tax money of the people of Texas—not exactly corrupt waste, but excessive expenditures of a kind that would not be tolerated in a private business. In the educational institutions supported by the State, it is asserted by some that there is too much duplication—that the schools are not keeping within the scope for which they were established, but without legislative authority are gradually assuming work not contemplated in their establishment. There is also complaint heard that there is too much conflict between certain State departments, with duplication of effort and expense that there is entirely too much and too expensive traveling about over the State and out of the State by salaried officials and employees for which the people get little or no returns, and that few departments or institutions are free from this wasteful expense. These are a few of the things that are talked about in and around legislative halls, but whether the talk will amount to anything more than talk remains to be seen. Such things make legislative sessions interesting.

Bank Clearings Increase

Bank clearings afford a good index to the business of a section, and Christmas shopping is another guide to prosperity of a people. Most of the buying immediately before Christmas is of a kind classed as luxuries and the purchasers are largely for gifts. The more prosperous a people the more gifts they make and the more expensive they are. This spending is shown in the bank clearings. In Dallas the bank clearances for the week before Christmas were $10,000,000 above those of the corresponding week of 1927, and in the Federal Reserve Banking District there were about $30,000,000 more than in the previous year.

Great Public Projects

McLennan county will spend some $16,000,000 on six major public projects in 1929 which is about 8 times the average annual expenditure for all classes of building for the past ten years. The largest single item is $7,000,000 for god roads, to include 169 miles of 20 foot concrete highway construction and 330 miles of gravelled country crossroads. McLennan county is building for the future as well as the present.

Banks Consolidate

Two large San Saba banks have recently consolidated, giving that good city one of the strong financial institutions of that section of the State. Banks seem to be following the general trend of business in the matter of consolidation and the elimination of competition. While much may be said in favor of large capitalization, when business competition of any kind is reduced there is always a danger that the character of the service rendered will also be decreased.

"Try Elgin First"

The Elgin Courier suggests as the motto for its town, "Try Elgin First," which is but right. The home business man spends his money largely with home folks, contributes to everything for the community upbuilding, makes the town liveable—in short there would be no town without him and none of the conveniences of modern town life. It is unfair to him to run away from home and patronize neighboring cities without at least giving him a fair trial. If he can not or will not meet competition then he should be willing to suffer the consequences, but he should have the first chance.

East Central Texas Oil

While the big production of Texas oil continues to be in a few West Texas and East Texas counties, what for lack of better designation may be called East Central Texas, is rapidly increasing its production. Luling promises to rank soon with Spindletop in quantity of oil. Gonzales, Bastrop and other neighboring places are attracting attention, and the Waller county field is now classed among the best in the State. Oil operators feel that the beginning of oil development in Texas has as yet hardly been made.

Texas Cotton King Dead

J. W. McFarlane of Palestine, who, because of producing the largest amount of cotton on five acres of land in a contest fostered by the Dallas News, became widely known throughout the country as the "Cotton King of Texas," died suddenly at his home during Christmas week. McFarlane became noted as a cotton grower, but his greatest value to the people was in showing them that Texas farms are even better adapted to numerous other crops than to cotton and that successful farming is not limited to cotton production. He was primarily a farmer and not merely a cotton grower, and he loved to see a farm produce everything that can be grown on it.

Ford Buys Texas Honey

Henry Ford buys his "pear honey" in Texas. Why not? Texas "pear honey" is the best in the world and Texas has been good to Henry Ford. A

Smith county club woman, living near Swan, conceived the idea that Texas honey should be pleasing to the Ford palate and she let him know about it. She recently received an order for ten pints of her best "pear honey" and of course Ford will become a permanent customer.

Marvin Jones' Proposal

Texas Congressman Marvin Jones is trying to have the Department of Agriculture devote more attention and help to the marketing problems of the farm. The farmer produces more than he can sell to any advantage and the middleman and public carriers get about all the profits from his production. The congressman who will make it his business to change this so that farming will be profitable will immortalize himself.

Read what these leading automobile editors said after seeing and riding in the new Chevrolet Six—

"In appearance, performance and mechanical nicety the new Chevrolet Six presents actual values far beyond its price range."

—Hazen Conklin
New York World

"Aside from beauty in body lines and attractiveness in finish, the astounding feature of the new Chevrolet Six is its powerful and flexible motor. One will have to go far to equal the high performance of this new Chevrolet in general road and traffic use."

—Leon J. Pinkson
San Francisco Chronicle

"The new Chevrolet is a triumph for volume production. The car at its price is one of the greatest achievements ever recorded in the automobile industry. Its beauty is a treat; its riding comfort a new delight and its performance a real sensation."

—Ray Priest
Detroit Times

"St. Louis motordom is tremendously enthused over the new Chevrolet Six. Personally I have never seen the public so interested in a new car. The factory should be congratulated on the truly monumental engineering feat it has accomplished."

BUYS CAMERON PROPERTY AND ENDS QUARTER CENTURY AS SPECIALIST IN PROFESSION IN CAMERON

DR. G. B. TAYLOR

Dr. G. B. Taylor has recently purchased the building formerly occupied by the Pace-Marshall Drug Company and has had the building remodeled with a new roof and the interior repapered and decorated. Dr. Taylor is now one of the large property owners of the city.

Dr. Taylor is a native of Bell county and president of the Central District Medical Society which met in Temple on Wednesday, January 9. This district is composed of 17 counties.

Dr. Taylor has resided in Cameron for the past 26 years and in this allotted time he has seen the city grow from a town of 2500 people to greater than six thousand. In his profession he has given the city greater prestige and his service to the city and surrounding community has been appreciated. He has been active in matters of sanitation and in his practice has served in many public capacities.

Three years ago he purchased the brick building now occupied by his office and the Square Drug Store placing this business in a better condition and making it more attractive. Last year Dr. Taylor bought the Ackerman building, remodeling and placing this building in a sanitary condition, the lower story being occupied by the Vaughn Dry Goods Company. Recently Dr. Taylor purchased the building owned by the Scarbrough estate of Austin, occupied by the Pace-Marshall Drug Company for many years.

Dr. Taylor has just finished his 25th year as local eye, ear, nose and throat specialist for the Southern Pacific railroad, also his 18th year as local specialist for the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe. He has always been a staunch member of the various medical societies, a member of the American Medical Association for 25 years. He has served as president of the Milam County Society and is serving his 10th year as secretary and treasurer of the society.

Dr. Taylor was elected vice president of the State Medical Society in Texas in 1925.

He is the father of Jack Taylor, noted athlete of Yoe High School and Baylor University. Jack has broken the world's record in many track events at Austin, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Chicago. He has been awarded 35 track and field medals. Jack in March 1928 married Miss Vertna Davidson of Waco, both being students at Baylor University. Jack has now settled down to become a prosperous business man. He owns the drug store opposite the Baylor University campus on the corner and is doing a splendid business, reports here indicate.

"Family Up Stairs" Is Pleasing But Few Attend The Play

"The Family Upstairs," a three-act comedy sponsored by the Business and Professional Woman's Club and presented at the Yoe High Auditorium Tuesday evening, provided two hours of entertainment of not an ordinary nature for Cameron people. This club is to be congratulated on the many attractions it has brought here during the current season.

The cast for "The Family Upstairs" consisted of six persons who really took part in the performance, and one who was mentioned but who did not appear. The family was made up of "Pa" Heller; "Ma", an overzealous person much given to exaggeration and possessing a glib tongue; "Sister" sweet and wholesome and without pretense; "Brother," a typical 'drug-store cowboy' of 1927, and a regular guy in his own estimation; the "Boy Friend" a good catch for Sister as agreed by her family; and the Boy Friend's "Ma" who played an unseen, unheard part.

As is suggested in the name, the story concerns the activities of a typical family made up of persons of marked characteristics. "Ma" Heller's ambition in life is to see her daughter, Louise, who "was 21 years old last March," happily married, not so much to insure the girl's happiness but to remove any possibility of their being talked about by the neighbors and to avoid the humiliation of having a maiden daughter. However, when THE young man appeared, in her eagerness to impress him, she exaggerated to such an extent that she frightened him away, causing a broken engagement. In the end as all good comedies do, thru the maneuvers of "Pa," the boy friend comes back again and all is forgiven.

The actors and actresses whose names with the exception of Noah Beilharz in the role of "Pa" Heller, were not mentioned on the programs, gave a credible performance. Each had a clear-cut character to interpret and he did it with the skill of an experienced performer. And there were some difficult scenes. For example, in the first act the family was served a meal which they consumed in a most natural manner. Those people who are even slightly experienced in dramatics know that such a scene tends to be awkward. The romantic scenes between Louise and her lover were also done in an easy, graceful manner.

The attendance was a disappointment to the Business Women and it is said that the play was a financial loss to them.

Mrs. B. V. Shirley and children are visiting in Temple this week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Berry.

CHRIST THE SAVIOR

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:3-7; Romans 5:6-10.
GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt call His name Jesus; for it is He that shall save His people from their sins.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Saves Us.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ, the World's Redeemer.

I. The Savior Predicted (Gen. 3:15; Is. 9:6, 7).

In connection with the fall of man and the pronouncement of judgment upon the woman, man and the serpent, and the announcement of the undying enmity which was to exist between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent, ultimate victory was predicted of the woman's seed. This enmity has continued all through the ages, even to the present time. On the cross of Calvary the final stroke was made which crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; 1 John 3:8). This announcement concerning the conquering One was the first gleam of the glorious gospel of Christ. A great victory was won, but at an infinite cost. The prediction of the Savior became more specific in Isaiah 9:6, 7. The eternal Son of God was "given" to the world, but He was "born" as a child.

II. The Savior Born (Luke 2:11, 30, 32).

That which had been predicted was historically fulfilled in the birth of Jesus Christ at Bethlehem. When Jesus was brought into the temple as a child, the Holy Ghost revealed to Simeon that this was the Messiah. He took the child Jesus in his arms and blessed God, declaring that he had now with his eyes seen God's salvation and that He was to be a light to lighten the Gentiles and was to be the glory of Israel. This appearance of the Savior was heralded to the shepherds by the angels as they ascribed to God the highest glory and announced peace on earth and good will to men.

III. The Savior Described.

1. He seeks the lost (Luke 15:3-7). This seeking of the lost is illustrated by the man leaving the ninety and nine sheep and going after the one which was lost, and his rejoicing over his success in finding it.

2. He died for the lost (John 3:14-17).

As the brazen serpent was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, so Jesus Christ was lifted up on the cross. God gave Jesus Christ to die, to make an atonement for the sins of the world. All those who believe on Him receive eternal life and therefore escape condemnation. Christ's coming into the world was not to condemn the world, but to bring to it salvation.

3. He knows His own (John 10:14).

As the Good Shepherd who seeks out the lost and gives His life for them. He has a definite knowledge of each one of them. Not only does He know them personally, but they in turn know Him.

4. He keeps His own (John 10:27-29).

Believers are Christ's sheep and because they are His sheep they hear His voice and follow Him. He not only gives unto them eternal life but holds them in His omnipotent hands. They are absolutely secure because no man is able to pluck them out of His hands.

IV. Some Blessings Received Through the Savior.

1. Physical Strength (Acts 3:1-11).

The healing of the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple is a fine example of Christ's ability to heal the body. This man had been lame from birth. Because the life of Jesus Christ was brought into touch with him, he was able immediately to arise—strength came into his feet and ankle bones. Not only did he arise, but he walked and leaped, praising God.

2. Justification (Rom. 5:1-11).

His one who receives Jesus Christ is declared righteous. His guilt is removed and because he is justified, he has peace with God, the assurance that God loves him, and real joy in God Himself.

3. Christ is the Supreme Example to the believer (Phil. 2:5-10).

Because the Savior became incorporated with the race through the incarnation, He is able to impart life to those with whom He is identified. Furthermore, because He thus imparts life, the believer is able to make Him an example. He is able to express the same spirit of devotion and humility in giving himself in service instead of being served.

Spend Time With God

It is the failure to spend a definite even though it be short, time each day with God that is the secret of all weakness, variableness, and shallowness in our spiritual experience and service.

Man Alone Able to Think

Of all God's creatures man alone is able to think immortally. What Darwin called "the grand instinct" has survived for countless aeons the shock of bodily death.—Dr. S. P. Cadman.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher. "I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough

T. C. C. training. "At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In training a crew for a boat race the coach spends hours and days and weeks training his oarsmen to stroke together. Every stroke of every man is timed to a minute precision to the end that the crew will work as one man. If they fail in this, it matters not how strong they are as individuals, the race will be lost. The same is true of communities. A community, to put over a program must marshal all its forces and concentrate on one goal. There can be no ragged strokes, no individualism, no hanging back for pet schemes and plans. The small community has the resource to make of itself anything it desires within reason, but to do so, it must concentrate—it must have the co-operation of every force and every energy and every resource. Cameron can have anything she wants that is within reason if every force and talent in this community will get behind the project and pull together.

If the need really exists for a public utilities commission for Texas then Governor Moody has given the legislature an opportunity to make a historic score. There has been some talk at add times about a public utilities commission. People do strange things. There is nothing a commission can do to protect the consumers as Governor Moody points out, that could not have been done by the people themselves when they granted the franchise. They gave away their public domain, now they will pay more taxes for a commission to protect them. This is not offered as a reason for or against the proposition, but this is true. Powers are inherent with cities and towns that have their own government to deal with this question of rates. Why urge a commission? When fastened on the people it would greatly increase the tax burdens.

Recently the Insull interests persuaded the people of Harlingen to vote in an election to authorize sale to them of the utilities system of that city. Mr. Insull has been somewhat tainted by congressional disclosures in investigations of the power trust. That probably meant nothing to the people at large over the country, but it does prove that people do strange things. The city government has refused sale of the plant though offered a million. Insull took it for cancellation of their debts. Now they will pay Mr. Insull instead of their bonding companies.

Went to Temple Tuesday for the heresy investigation. Mr. Kenney the liberal pastor of Cameron's Presbyterian church won a victory for liberalism. The 'grand jury' no billed him. Mr. Kenney is now being widely sought by influential pulpits. He likes the people of Cameron. He says he has found much satisfaction here and many broad and liberal minds. Mr. Kenney will preach Sunday morning at his church. Heresy hunters will not bother him any more.

Difficulties are like hills to the traveler. They appear formidable in the distance, but if one keeps on moving, the road levels over the top before one is aware of it, and the valley on the other side bursts into view.

Spurgeon once said: "Trials teach us what we are; they dig up the soil and let us see what we are made of; they just turn up some of the ill weeds on the surface."

Building Loan Officers Named At Meeting

Officers and directors for the Cameron Building and Loan Association have been announced by H. M. Hefley as follows:

Robert McLane, President.
H. M. Hefley, Secretary and Treasurer.
Directors: A. H. Baskin, Moulton Cobb, Dr. T. J. Denson, T. A. Fisher, A. N. Green, A. K. Gurecky and F. E. Jackson.

Mrs. Harvey Caldwell Dies In Oklahoma

Mrs. Harvey Caldwell, daughter-in-law of Mrs. Estelle Caldwell of this city, died in Ardmore, Oklahoma on December 27 from an attack of pneumonia. Mrs. Estelle Caldwell had gone to Oklahoma to spend the Christmas holidays with her son and his family, arriving there on Saturday evening before Christmas and the daughter died the following Thursday.

Mrs. Shofner Sterling of Pearsall, a sister-in-law of Mrs. Harvey Caldwell was in Killen visiting her husband's parents when news of the death was received and she went to Ardmore for the funeral. Burial was in Ardmore.

Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Caldwell never lived in Cameron but they visited their parents here often and formed many friends who will sorrow at the news of her death. Beside her husband she is survived by one daughter, Harvey Jean, who is eleven years old.

Mrs. Estelle Caldwell has not returned from Oklahoma and Mr. Caldwell's plans for his and his young daughter's future are not known.

DECLINE IN DEPOSITS SHOWN IN STATEMENTS

CITIZENS BANK SHOWS SLIGHT GAIN BUT TOTAL FOR CITY IS LESS

A decline of $79,849.44 in bank deposits for the city of Cameron is disclosed in the statements of the Cameron banks issued effective December 31, 1928. This is the first time a decline has been noted in a long period.

Liquidation with money being sent out of the community is said to offer an explanation for this showing.

The total deposits of the Cameron banks as published on October 11, 1928 showed a total of deposits on that date of $3,153,130.10 whereas in the statements published this week showing the condition of the banks on December 31, 1928 the total deposits are $3,077,280.76.

The Citizens National Bank is the only Cameron bank to show an increase of deposits the amount of increase being small, $923.62.

The First National Bank shows a decline in deposits of $57,720.95 while the Cameron State Bank shows a decline of $23,052.11 in deposits.

Generally the condition of the Cameron banks is excellent indicating a healthful state of the finances of the community. The decline is only temporary and is not indicative of the state of the community.

Woman Gets 18 Months In State Penitentiary

Hilda Watson was convicted by a jury in District court here this week and given 18 months in the state penitentiary on a charge of unlawfully possessing intoxicating liquor.

The woman was charged along with her husband John Watson with possessing liquor and he is to be tried for a similar offense, the case having been continued.

So far as could be ascertained this morning this is the second conviction for women in liquor cases in this county. Other court news follows:

The January term of district court met Monday. No grand jury was impaneled though one was drawn in case it should be needed this term. The dockets were called and several cases set for trial.

Paschal Johnson pleaded guilty to unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor and was given a year in the penitentiary. He accepted his sentence.

Grant Frierson's case for unlawful transportation of intoxicating liquor was continued on account of his being sick.

The jury assessed punishment at 18 months in the penitentiary for Hilda Watson charged with unlawful possession of intoxicating liquor.

The case of State vs. John Flewellen charged with murder is on call for Thursday and a venire of 75 names ordered.

Miss Tabbie Robinson is at Gulf, Texas this week visiting her sister and her mother.

Brilliant Defense of Liberal Pastor Sweeps Presbytery in Investigation At Temple

By J. B. WHITE
Editor The Cameron Herald

TEMPLE, Texas, January 8—In a brilliant defense, presenting what is declared to be the greatest extemporaneous address ever heard in the councils of the church, Rev. H. G. Kenney, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Cameron, Tuesday in Temple won a victory for liberalism and defeated charges of heresy sought through investigation by a "grand jury" of the Presbytery in executive session.

Not unlike the great Paul of Tarsus who in a dramatic hour of Christian history stood before King Agrippa in the ancient city of Caesarea to declare a new thing, appealing to the intelligence of the judgment seat of Caesar, comments by members of the Presbytery might lead one to say: "Almost thou persuadest me." For in this hour of reckoning at the bar of orthodoxy Mr. Kenney stood with resolute spirit in flaming eloquence to sustain the views of modern scholarship and to write a new chapter in the history of Central Texas Presbytery.

The victory aside from its privilege of free speech in his pulpit is not one of aggression, but paves the way for a new day and a new philosophy to which a mighty intellect has been attuned in conviction of need for a 20th century application of the principles set forth by the Savior of Mankind.

At the conclusion of the hearing Stonewall J. McMurray, stated clerk, announced that a committee had been appointed which will confer with Mr. Kenney to obtain further light on his views with but one conflict remaining out of the mass of detailed charges filed and signed by five members of his board of Elders.

"His defense was really a brilliant thing," said Dr. McMurray when seen by newspaper correspondents shortly after the meeting had adjourned. The committee is composed of Dr. McMurray, C. T. Caldwell of Waco and Rev. W. H. Matthews of Marlin. "The Presbytery is satisfied in a large part with the statements of Mr. Kenney," said Dr. McMurray.

It is now 11 o'clock and the members of the Presbytery are gathered within the walls of the little church that nestles amid the drab foliage of stately trees, dimly lighted, its weatherboard sides seamed with moss and traces of decay. Filing in silently and taking seats in the rear of the building are members of Mr. Kenney's congregation, all hoping their pastor will be able to offer a satisfactory defense before the galaxy of leadership here assembled.

Looking into the faces of the ministers, men of high and moderate standing in the councils of this great denominational enterprise, one feels that serious business is at hand. The delegates are splitting into small groups about the building and all talking in subdued tones. The stated clerk, Dr. Stonewall J. McMurray is at his desk busy with a mass of details.

Kenney Sits Alone

Over against a stained glass window apart, sits Mr. Kenney reading from a volume which appears to be a book on church laws and dogma. We are told he has prepared no address of defense, due somewhat to the fact that he is as yet unacquainted with the nature and detail of the specific charges that have been filed. He is the least disturbed of the distinguished company of men who are to propound to him questions touching upon his ministry at Cameron. In perfect charm of agreeable personality he greets newspaper correspondents who go over to the little bench where he sits waiting for the session to open. They propound to him questions which he answers with courtesy and great dignity.

"There have been many men labeled as heretics during the past 2000 years and if that is my lot I will find myself in notable company," he said in a soft, vibrant voice.

Now the meeting is about to be called to order and still Mr. Kenney does not know what the charges will be, except that they will be brought under the general broad charge of "Modernism and Liberalism."

"Are you a liberal," Mr. Kenney is asked.

"Certainly I am. I do not see how any man in this day and time can be other than a liberal," he replied.

When asked what college he attended Mr. Kenney said:

"O, my, if that came out it would be adding fuel to the fire. The folks would think it was awful. You know how they regard certain higher educational institutions."

Visitors Are Excluded

We are back now at our seats. The moderator on suggestion of Dr. McMurray that the time is at hand for the session to convene, takes the gavel. The stated clerk is asked to read the call whereupon Dr. William Redd, veteran minister and Presbyterian writer, declares this to be an adjourned executive session, that the visitors will be "appreciated for their absence, and we would also be glad to magnify our absence from this meeting and would do so but for the stern duty that is placed upon us."

Kenney Makes Defense

After organization the delegates adjourn for lunch and as they gather again for the afternoon session Mr. Kenney is cornered by the press but under the circumstances will not discuss the proceedings. The camera is used and the pastor is caught among friends who press about him to urge their sympathy.

We are told a little as delegates go in and out of the little church. The resources of experience are a great (continued on page 6)

LOCAL DEALER EXPECTS DISPLAY OF CARS HERE SOME TIME SOON

Pontiac, Mich., January 10.—Popularly acclaimed at the New York Automobile Show as one of the most distinctive of the new cars for 1929 the Pontiac Six—bigger and better, faster and smarter—is now being displayed over a widening area expected to embrace all of the United States within the next few weeks, declared a statement issued here today by the Oakland Motor Car Company.

Showings of the new line are being timed to tie in with the opening of the automobile shows at leading cities throughout the country, it was stated.

While first displayed at the National Show at New York on January 5th, the new Pontiac line went on exhibition at the automobile shows held at Birmingham, Ala., on January 7th; Newark, Philadelphia, Milwaukee, Buffalo and Schenectady on January 12th; Atlanta and Cincinnati on January 13, and will be displayed at Nashville simultaneous with the opening of the show there on January 14.

Next week a similar list of new cities located at widely separated points, will see for the first time this newest General Motors Six.

Rapidly mounting daily volume will make possible sufficient display models to place the car on exhibition shortly before the end of the month, in those towns where the automobile show is not held until Spring, it was expected. Cars are now being built on a volume basis on the three assembly lines of the modern Oakland-Pontiac plant here.

A. E. Schiller of the Schiller Motor Company was not advised Thursday as to the exact date of the arrival here of one of the new Pontiac cars. He expects a shipment within a few days and full announcement will be made about the display of these cars here.

Directors For State Bank Named; Officers To Be Named Later

Election of officers for the Cameron State Bank has been postponed, according to J. C. Tucker, vice president.

The meeting of the stock holders on Tuesday, January 8, resulted in the election of the following directors: T. F. Hardy, Preston Graves, B. J. Matocha, George T. Graves, Will Davis, W. O. Triggs and J. C. Tucker.

Mr. Hardy has been ill for some time at his home and it is thought that as soon as he has recovered the election of officers will be held. In the meantime the old officers who will be re-elected will continue to function with the business of the bank.

J. K. Freeman Up From Attack of Influenza

J. K. Freeman who has been ill from an attack of influenza was able to be at his office on Wednesday where he was greeted by a large number of his friends.

Mr. Freeman has been ill at his home for several days and has not been able to attend to his office duties but in his absence the work has been carried on by Miss Annie Slama, his efficient assistant.

NO CHANGES ARE MADE IN CITIZENS BANK

ALL OFFICERS AND DIRECTORS ARE RE-ELECTED AT MEETING TUESDAY, JANUARY 8

No changes are made in the personnel of the Citizens National Bank as shown by the election of officers and directors here on Tuesday, January 8. All officers and directors remain the same.

Oxshere Smith was re-elected to the presidency of the Citizens National Bank to succeed himself, a place he has occupied with this bank for a number of years. The Citizens National Bank has become the largest bank in Milam county and one of the strong banks of the state. Mr. Smith has directed the policies of this bank and given it growth.

The list of officers announced is as follows: T. S. Henderson, vice president; W. O. Newton, active vice-president; Irvin N. Clary, cashier; Philip Reid, assistant cashier; Rush Thomas, director; Dr. D. E. Monroe, director.

Venison Supper Served To Club Directors

Frank S. Lesovsky assisted by A. E. Smith of the Newport Cafe, served the directors of the Commercial Club on Monday night with a venison supper.

The meat was brought back by Mr. Lesovsky when he felled a large buck near the Mexican border some days ago. Mr. Lesovsky serves the directors with a venison supper each year following his trips to the deer country. So far he has never failed to bring back the 'bacon.'

T. S. Henderson, Jr., was toastmaster and in his pleasing way conducted a program of great merit with a number of the guests coming in for jokes and fun. Addresses were also made by a number of directors and visitors.

Talking Texas Urged By Texas Power and Light Co. In Ads

"Texans, lets talk Texas," is the caption of an advertisement in this issue of The Herald by the Texas Power and Light Company.

Making 1929 the most active year Texas has ever experienced is the program set out by this company.

Letting the outside world know what Texas has to offer in the way of manufacturing sights and commercial advantages are the things stressed.

J. P. Wimberly of Rosebud Route 2, was in the city Tuesday and while here was a welcome guest at the office of The Herald. Mr. Wimberly extended his subscription to 1930 and declares he likes The Herald and wants it to come to his address every week.

Miss Johnnie Mae Moore visited friends and relatives in Coolidge last week.

MRS. T. C. STAFFORD DIES AT HOME IN CAMERON

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR PIONEER MOTHER HELD TUESDAY, JANUARY 8

Mrs. T. C. Stafford, 67, resident of Cameron for the past 42 years died at the family residence in Cameron at a nearly hour Monday morning, January 7, 1928 following a bronchial attack which resulted in heart failure.

Mrs. Stafford had been in ill health for some years, one of her troubles being a weak heart. She died as she lay sleeping in her bed sometime during the early morning hours, having been found lifeless by her children who arose to look after her condition.

Funeral services for Mrs. Stafford were held at the family residence Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock with Rev. P. T. Ramsey of the First Methodist church officiating and the Coleman-Eplen undertaking firm directing the funeral with interment in Oak Hill cemetery.

Death came to Mrs. Stafford suddenly, it is said, because at two o'clock in the morning one of the children had arisen to see if Mrs. Stafford was resting comfortably. When the family arose at a nearly hour she was dead.

For the past two years Mrs. Stafford had been almost an invalid having been injured from a fall. Physicians had told that she could probably never walk again, but her will power was a great factor and she overcame the handicap and was able to go about the home and other places.

When word was received that Mrs. Stafford had died, the city was universally in sorrow because of her death and the grief it brings to the aged husband, T. C. Stafford and the children.

Many friends gathered at the home to pay their tribute of respect. A chorus of voices from the First Methodist choir of which Mrs. Stafford was a long time member sang two hymns "Rock of Ages" and "Abide With Me." After reading scripture from the Methodist service book and offering a prayer, Rev. Ramsey paid tribute to the memory of deceased and well chosen and comforting words. He said he could speak in the most elaborate terms of praise and still be within the bounds of reason and truth when he spoke of her life.

He paid especial tribute to her sunny disposition which never failed and was a source of inspiration to all even in times of great stress and trouble. She was devoted to music, having been the organist in her church for some 20 years. After giving up this service she sang in the choir until her injury two years ago. She assisted with the Christmas music on Christmas eve two years ago and was injured the following day.

In summing up her outstanding characteristics, Rev. Ramsey said she was of a beautiful Christian character, that she was possessed of an unfolding disposition, that she was a devoted wife, a loving, tender mother and a wholesome, healthy, sanctified influence in the community.

Services were continued at the cemetery. The choir sang "Shall We Gather at the River?" after which a prayer was offered and then the benediction dismissed the crowd. A beautiful floral offering testified to the esteem with which Mrs. Stafford was held in Cameron.

Mrs. Stafford was born about sixty-seven years ago. About forty-two years ago she came to Cameron where she had lived ever since. On January 3, 1888 she was married to T. C. Stafford. Six children were born to this union, four of whom survive. She was converted and joined the Methodist church in Illinois during her girlhood days.

Immediate survivors are her husband, T. C. Stafford, two sons, W. H. and Howard Stafford; two daughters, Miss Glenn Stafford and Mrs. Juanita Stafford Lyons; and one grandson, Stafford Lyons.

Pall bearers were W. A. Bonds, T. A. Fisher, C. S. Peyton, Roy Baskin, Walter Sharpe and Bob Phillips.

Exactness Is Chief Aim in Manufacture Of New Ford Car

A million axle shafts, each one exactly like the other 999,999 within one thousandth of an inch—four million pistons fitting four million cylinders with a degree of exactness that all but staggers the imagination—many more millions of drilled and threaded holes, all placed with an accuracy of location that is incomprehensible to any but the mechanically or mathematically minded—and all these factors, combined with other millions of parts manufactured in widely separated units of a gigantic plant, meeting on an assembly line to fashion a million automobiles. This is the miracle that is modern mass production, the miracle that was conjured up by Mr. Henry Ford when he started his first automobile assembly line.

The story of how it is possible to make a million—or ten million, or twenty million, for that matter—of any machine part, each one identical with all its fellows, is a story of measurements. Just as that story of measurements explains the ability of the Ford Motor Company to produce fifteen million Model T automobiles, it also explains Mr. Ford's ability to produce the Model A in the same plants and by the same methods that made possible the pioneer Ford cars, yet at limits that are from 1-4 to 112 what they were on the Model T.

Today, in the Detroit plants, mechanics who have never looked thru the eye-piece of a microscope are measuring within limits too fine for any unaided eye to see. Model A parts machined to within one thousandth part of an inch accuracy are all in the day's work. Back of this precision are something like a million gages that must be kept in correct adjustment at all times, and many thousands of these gages are in constant use throughout the Ford plants. There is no time for hand-fitting of inaccurate parts on the assembly line. They must either fit the first time or they are valueless. Therefore, the parts must leave the various machines which fashion them with every specified dimension correct. The result is that when put together, the car moves off the assembly line under its own power, a completed means of transportation requiring no special adjustments.

There are inspection and working gages to measure outside and inside diameters, lengths, widths, heights, angles, pitch diameter and lead of screw threads, which are in the hands of workmen throughout each day, testing and checking each part as it passes from machine to machine thru the plant. But these gages will wear or get slightly out of adjustment under constant use, therefore, they must be constantly watched. So behind them must be master gages of greater accuracy, for use as Standards. These master gages, the product of the C. E. Johansson Division of the Ford Motor Company are accurate within a millionth part of an inch.

Throughout the Ford plants inspectors are moving constantly, each with special hardened, ground and lapped rectangular steel blocks—Johansson Gages. These gage blocks are in special sizes to meet requirements of the workman's scrutiny; making it unnecessary for inspectors to make up combinations to measure different dimensions of length. A set of 81 gage blocks, such as is used in the tool rooms, can be combined to measure 120,000 different size lengths, from three-sixteenths inch to over twelve inches, and each of the 120,000 combination gages represent a variation of one-ten-thousandth part of an inch.

On some operations where the limits are close, the gages are changed every two to four hours to correct a wear of one ten-thousandth part of an inch which occurs in that time. Others are adjusted or changed at less frequent intervals, as frequency of use and amount of wear dictates.

In addition to their use in the production of Ford cars, trucks, airplanes and Lincoln automobiles, the Johansson gage blocks are the standard of the world for industrial precision measurement of length.

Chevrolet Sets New Production Record

With thousands of the new Chevrolet sixes daily being placed in the hands of owners, Chevrolet Motor Company announced officially here yesterday that production for the first ten and a half months of 1928 equalled 1,200,000 units. This figure it was said represented an increase of 180,000 units over 1927, the best previous year.

Month after month of last year found Chevrolet shattering all former production marks. Its all time record for monthly output occurred in May, when 140,775 units were produced. May stood out in the Chevrolet calendar also because it included the greatest single day's output in the company's 16 years of history. Seven thousand and seventy-five cars and trucks, completely finished, rolled off Chevrolet assembly lines May 28.

Coincident with the announcement of 1928 production figures, Chevrolet officials at the New York Automobile Show last week, were viewing with interest the continued enthusiasm that the crowds bestowed on the new sixes. Several ranking officials reiterated the statement made a few weeks ago by W. S. Knudsen, president, that 1929 production would equal at least 1,250,000 units. One of the salient tributes paid Chevrolet by visiting automobile men at the show involved the company's remarkable evolution from four cylinder to six cylinder production in the short space of a few weeks. Today all nine of Chevrolet's assembly plants are rapidly adjusting themselves to take care of peak schedules.

For the fourth time in as many years the sales department of Chevrolet at this time is sponsoring its annual series of nationwide sales meetings. The first of the series, which will be extended to include 35 cities, opened yesterday in New York. Three crews each composed of five men, all factory executives, will conduct the meetings. It is the purpose of the meetings to enable the Chevrolet dealer organization, numbering over 10,000 dealers, to hear from the lips of the company's sales heads the complete 1929 sales program.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher. "I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough T. C. C. training.

"At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In the big illustrated book, "Achieving Success in Business" are printed scores of stories of men and women who have reached success as a result of training. The book is free. No obligation. Won't you let us send you a copy? Just clip the coupon below and mail it today.

Senators From Texas

IN THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS 1845-1930

BI ALVA O. HEARNE

JOHN HEMPHILL (1859-1861)

John Hemphill was born in the Chester district, South Carolina on December 18, 1803. He graduated from Jefferson College in Pennsylvania in 1825; located in Sumpter, S. C., where he edited a nullification paper during the years 1832-1833, and thereafter emigrated to Texas.

Hemphill was an astute lawyer and attained such eminence that upon the resignation of Judge Thomas J. Rusk in 1840 he was appointed Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of the republic. He resigned that judgeship in 1842 to become adjutant general and accompanied General Somerville in the unfortunate Mier expedition to capture reprisals for Texans held as prisoners in Mexico.

He was a member of the convention of 1845 which adopted the ordinance of annexation and of the convention which framed the State Constitution. After the annexation of Texas to the United States, he was, in 1846, appointed chief justice of the State Supreme Court and held that position until elected to the United States Senate.

As General Sam Houston's term in the United States Senate would expire before the meeting of the State legislature in 1859, the legislature of 1857 elected his successor. The candidates before the legislature were John Hemphill and William S. Oldham, both of whom were known to be States Rights men with very strong Southern sentiments. Both resided in Austin.

Judge Hemphill was then chief justice of the Supreme Court of Texas. Judge Oldham was a distinguished lawyer and a good political speaker. He had been on the supreme court bench in Arkansas before coming to Texas. Judge Hemphill had been chief justice of the republic and of the State of Texas for fifteen years continuously. Having held courts since 1851 in Austin, Galveston and Tyler, Judge Hemphill had a more extensive acquaintance in the State which gave him a decided advantage over Judge Oldham. Though scarcely known in Eastern Texas, Judge Oldham received a considerable vote in the legislature. Judge Hemphill was elected and took his seat in the United States Senate at the expiration of General Houston's term, March 4, 1859.

Judge Hemphill was one of the 14 Senators who, on January 6, 1861 met in caucus and adopted resolutions recommending to their States immediate secession. In the following February he was made a deputy to the Confederate provisional congress in Montgomery, Alabama. He and his colleague from Texas, Senator Louis T. Wigfall were expelled from the United States Senate by resolution adopted by that body on July 11, 1861.

During his extended career on the Supreme Court bench Judge Hemphill established many important precedents, and settled many questions which had been long in conflict in the Old States. He was one of the most learned of his time and one of his outstanding judicial achievements was his success in harmonizing the common and civil law elements of Texas jurisprudence.

Judge Hemphill was never married, though he was ever a champion of the widow and the orphan, a staunch advocate and protector of the legal rights of married women and invariably gave to laws regarding them a liberal construction. One of the decisions of an eminent judge styled him the great champion of the homestead rights in Texas. His name is indelibly inscribed upon the jurisprudence of the State.

He was not an orator, but his speech was logical and always presented a stern array of facts in pure, terse and incisive language. Those qualities are exhibited in his speech on the right of a state to withdraw from the Union, delivered in the Senate in January 1861. In that speech he showed that Texas, having been an independent Republic of good standing among the nations at the time of its annexation, would, in withdrawing from the Union, only resume that sovereignty and independence which she had laid aside when she entered it. In answer to charges of ingratitude then made upon Texas in view of her threatened secession, he showed that the State was not in any way responsible for the Mexican war, and that it was not waged by the United States even for the benefit of Texas.

Judge Hemphill died in Richmond, Virginia on January 4, 1862. His remains were brought to Austin and interred in the State Cemetery, where they repose by the side of those of some of his judicial associates.

IN DESPAIR

Run-down and Nervous Woman Picked Up, Got Strong.

"I can heartily recommend Cardui, because I have found it so helpful," declares Mrs. Norton Smith, of Warrenton, Georgia.

"I was very much run-down, and was hardly able to get about."

"I could not sleep at night, and was in a highly nervous condition. Nothing seemed to help me, and I was almost in despair. I decided to try Cardui and sent for a bottle."

"I soon began to improve. I got so I could eat. My appetite was good. My nerves got stronger, and I was able to sleep well at night. I picked up in weight and my color was much better."

Cardui is sold by all druggists. Try it.

CARDUI

Used By Women For Over 50 Years

In The Realm of Sports

By LEE R. TAG

The man that made sporting spectacles popular with high class society is dead. His name was "Tex" Rickard and his name was known wherever sport followers met. His passing at Miami, Florida this week was indeed a blow to all sports. Although "Tex" was best known in the fist world, the other branches of sport knew him well, for in his noted Madison Square Garden many other sporting shows were held.

He was a man that dabbled in hundreds of thousands and staked that much on the outcome of a throw of a pair of dice yet everybody who had any dealings with him or had a contract with him knew that he kept his word. He always paid his fighters whether he won or lost and that is something that can't be said of many sport promoters.

Incidentally and without any criticism Mr. Rickard said that of the many fighters he had helped to make not one had even so much as given him a cigar for his troubles. He wonders if this could be called ingratitude.

The basketball season in the Southwestern Conference is in full swing now and fans will see some lively competition among the basketball teams. The Arkansas Razorbacks seem due to repeat even though the Mustangs gave them a lively battle last week. Walker's Texas Longhorns do not seem to be in their best form at present because the Daniel Baker Hill Billies were nearly too much for them while the Baylor Bears found it tough going with a weaker Texas Conference team.

A. & M. has secured the services of Matty Bell of T. C. U. as their football coach and the Aggies are sure to be in the running for the title next year. Bell will more than likely report to College in time for spring training.

It won't be long now until the familiar crack of the horsehide against willow will be heard in the training camps of the big leaguers. Texas fans will be given an opportunity to see some of the big stars in action. There will be games in Dallas and Ft. Worth and it is likely that other towns will be hosts to the representatives of the big show.

A few holdouts are in evidence at this stage of the season and some ball players will find that they no longer have a berth on a team but most of the big boys will be on the job at the beginning of the season.

It will be of interest to the Cameron fans to know that "Red" Bogus of Comet fame a few years ago has signed up with the Dallas Steers. Bogus has the distinction of being a player who can fill all positions on the diamond and fill them well. He will more than likely be used as a catcher on the Dallas club. He was the first to sign their contract.

Not so long ago, Bogges played a game in which he changed positions every inning. This is quite a remarkable feat because it usually takes a player some time to become acclimated to the position he is to play. Be it said to "Red's" credit that he played each position well in the aforesaid game.

In addition to being quite a ball player, Bogges is no slouch on the basketball court. As a forward, he has no superior in the State. In a game some years ago when he was playing for the Y. M. C. A. of Waco, his team was playing the Southwestern University Pirates at Georgetown. It was his sensational goal from the middle of the court that won the game for his team.

"Pancho" Synder has been signed as manager of the Houston Buffs next season and he hopes to duplicate the feat of winning the Texas League flag and the Dixie Series. He is going to have a hard job ahead of him unless the Cardinal bosses see fit to send him some good material. One more good pitcher to the Buff staff would be a decided help as well as a good hitting outfield. The infield seems at present to be adequate for all present demands. No one seems to know just what the disagreement between Ankeman and Snyder was all about and it may flare up later in the season and this is enough to ruin any club.

The Dallas Steers will be in there next season and the new management ought to be able to make them pennant contenders. Dallas has some very good material but they don't deliver in the pinches and that is what counts. The Dallas fans will support a winning club and the owners know that. All the more reason for a good club.

The Superfex OIL BURNING Refrigerator

The Most Economical Refrigerator Ever Built.

COSTS TWO CENTS PER DAY OPERATION

Think of What You Can Save

Now for the first time, with the invention of the marvelous Superfex Oil-burning Refrigerator, you can enjoy modern refrigeration in your home no matter how far you may be from central station electric power and other conveniences.

The Superfex turns the heat from a pint of kerosene—costing two cent—into 24 hours of effective refrigeration.

Once a day you "Light it and leave it." No further attention is required. The burners do the work silently and obout an hour and a quarter and go out automatically, but the refrigeration goes on. There are no moving parts, no valves—nothing to get out of order.

The Superfex is built for healthful refrigeration and guaranteed to give lasting service. The food compartment lining is one piece steel, white porcelain enameled, the finest that can be made. Food racks rest on tracks that are pressed into lining—no screw holes, no seams or joints, rounded corners, easy to keep clean.

Young Texas Farmers Set High Records

College Station, Texas, Jan. 5.—Texas will always be a land of plenty and Texas farmers won't be in need of much relief if the next generation of farmers follows the lead set by the twenty-three 4-H Club boys of Texas who won prize trips to Chicago this winter on their crop production, livestock and poultry records. Battling with yields and gains and profits these boys emerged victorious in a fight for high honors with more than 17,000 other club boys to represent the Lone Star State at the National 4-H Club Congress held in Chicago during the International Live Stock Exposition. Officials of the Extension Service, A. & M. College of Texas, announced that records of these outstanding young farmers showed the yields of cotton to the acre varied from a bale to more than three bales, a corn club boy made 154 bushels to the acre, milo maize member gathered nearly three tons of threshed grain off one acre, a sweet potato club acre made 220 bushels, a pig club boy made a net profit of $240 on a litter, aboy with turkeys cleared $510 from a start of eight turkey hens last February, a dairy cow club member showed a net profit of $296 in less than a year and the winner of the lone baby beef prize showed a gain of $123. Most noteworthy, because it seems to be the highest corn yield in Texas in a long time if not the record yield is the production by Paul Robinson of 154 bushels of weighed corn from a measured acre of creek bottom land in Madison county. Three other club boys in that county made over 100 bushels of corn to the acre. Out in El Paso county at Ysleta a youthful farmer named Jack Flynt made 4406 pounds of seed cotton on one irrigated acre, previously devoted during fourteen years to that king of soil builders, alfalfa. Marvin Kelly, of Minden in Rusk county, planted his acre in a branch bottom sodded with Bermuda grass and come thru with 1256 pounds of lint, and more than $200 in his pocket. Jasper county in Southeast Texas showed the sweet potato champion, Mack Behannon of Magnolia Springs, whose 11,000 pounds of sweet potatoes netted him $187.95. On the South Plains Spence Hall in the meantime was growing and harvesting 5775 pounds of white milo maize from an acre devoted to pure line seed direct from the Experiment Sub-Station at Lubbock.

In livestock, an unusually good record was made by W. C. Wright, of Lamesa in Dawson county, with a litter of nine pure bred Duroc Jersey pigs that netted him $241. He made his money to get his start by working in spare time for a neighbor, sold $170 worth of breeding animals during the year, won $55 at county fairs by taking ribbons in every class he showed in against adult breeders and ended the year with $210 worth of stock on hand.

Possibly the most unusual achievement was that of Milton Wakefield of Midlothian, Ellis county. With aid from a banker and from the sale of his club pigs he bought for $100 a bred registered Jersey heifer that dropped a bull calf in April. She produced so remarkably that he put her on Registered of Merit test and by the end of October she had milked 6269 pounds yielding 280 pounds of butter fat. From far and near dairy farmers have come to see this six gallon cow and bona fide offers of $400 have been made for the cow and calf. The boy's net profits were shown to be $296.

Almost if not quite as outstanding was the work of J. R. Crow, of Hillsboro, who began a turkey project in February with eight hens from which he raised 109 birds. He sold $193.61 worth for market purposes and has on hand seven males and fifty hens valued at more than $400 according to offers received. His net profits amounted to $510.63.

All the boys cited with the exception of the corn club champion who won a Chilean Nitrate of Soda prize trip, made the Chicago excursion by virtue of prizes awarded by the Santa Fe Railroad. Armour and Company's annual award of a Chicago trip to the outstanding Texas baby beef club member was won by Joe Hutton, of Fair, Hamilton county, who put 294 pounds of beef onto a six month's calf at acost of 7 cents a pound and whose net profit came to $123.12.

THE REAL AMERICAN

Though I speak the English language, quote the Declaration of Independence and recite the Constitution of the United States if I do not respect the law, treat my fellow men with equity and justice, serve my country honestly unselfishly and vigilantly, I have become a babler of words and a hypocrit, but I am not an American. Though I have the gift of oratory, move the masses with patriotic fervor, understand the mysteries of politics and plead the cause of good government, if I accept privileges and neglect responsibilities of citizenship for interests contrary to ideal and principle I am not an American.

Though I am a descendant of the Mayflower or of the Revolutionary or any other historic period, speak boastfully of the noble accomplishments of my ancestors allowing the thought of my lineage to swell my bosom with pride, if my life does not exemplify the spirit of liberty, respecting the rights of others, democracy and justice, mercy, peace, love and truth I am not an American. And though I am a naturalized citizen, possessing the fundamental rights of man, enjoying economic, social culture, education and political advantages effecting its policies and destiny, if I do not hold the interest of my native land and its people of primary importance I am not an American.

The foreign born American, conscious of the Old World limitations and petty contentions, should bring the best of his racial individuality, national characteristics, historic and traditional beauties and spiritual gifts laying them at the altar of America, lighting them with the holy fire of gratitude and vowing daily so to live that this Republic may continue to bless all with her spirit of liberalism.

Whether native or foreign born an American is a magnet of good citizenship, for he lives wisely, works assiduously, considers his thoughts and motives carefully that liberty may remain a neternal reality in the annals of man and that popular government may find stimulus in his intelligent devotion to the principles of Americanism.

The American knows that the greatness of this Republic is limited only by the limitations of man. Therefore he makes himself great by the art of goodness, intelligence and wisdom and helps others to measure up to their best, thus demonstrating to the world the indispensability of democracy in the advance of civilization.

He favors no nation, no race, no creed at the sacrifice of wisdom, truth and love. He serves them all by first serving the purpose of America. He is the master of himself and hears all sides of a question and measures all points by principle, thus reaching a conclusion that safeguards popular rule, freedom of conscience and equality of opportunity. This American is never arrogant if there is a tendency to intolocate he overcomes it with the thought of the Golden Rule. If there is any offer to bribery his genuine self respect and the faith and trust of others in him hasten to sustain his innate moral righteousness against that insult to personal integrity. He knows that the first and last defense of his country is his personal conduct in private life. Freedom of legitimate activity, equality of opportunity, security of life and property, peace with mutual understanding, recognition and guarantee of the fundamental rights of man.

Advertised Products Are More Economically Produced

Some have thoughtlessly said, "the purchaser pays for the advertising," or "this article is cheaper because it is not so widely advertised. Someone must pay for this advertising," etc.

The fact is it costs so much less to produce advertised articles than it does non-advertised articles that the cost of advertising is more than taken care of in the economy of manufacture.

Everyone knows that any article can be produced cheaper in large quantities than when only a few are made.

Everyone knows that advertising will sell many thousands where one of the non-advertised articles is sold.

The problem is simple. The advertising makes possible quantity production and the cost saved in manufacture, due to quantity production, more than pays the advertising.

FROM THE FILES OF THE CAMERON HERALD

28 Years Ago

S. W. Cheeves of Temple was in the city last Thursday on business.

George Graves left last Sunday morning for San Antonio where he will take a commercial course in the Alamo Business College. George is an industrious young man and we wish him much success.

Gus Evans of Rosebud was on our streets for a day during Christmas week.

Last Sunday afternoon at five o'clock Mr. Will Johnson and Miss Martha Wallace were married at the home of the bride's parents in this city. We wish them a long and happy life.

D. B. Worcester held the number drawing the saddle at Brewer and Wallace's Saloon, which was 2506. This was a valuable gift and Mr. Worcester is highly elated over being so fortunate.

D. Kemp is moving this week to the building recently occupied by the W. L. Baird dry goods store. Mr. Kemp will remain in this building until the new Bickett building, east of the First National Bank, is completed.

F. Boedeker, one of the leading citizens of Gay Hill, Washington county, arrived in Cameron last Friday and has taken charge of the R. Todd place, situated on Walker's Creek, which he has recently purchased and will make old Milam his future home. The Herald is always glad to welcome such a thrifty citizen and wish him much success in his new home.

SHERIFF'S SALE

The State of Texas,
County of Milam,

Whereas, on the 16th day of November A. D., 1928, in a certain cause numbered 1001 on the docket of the District Court of said county, wherein the State of Texas is plaintiff and Henry F. Lippman, Bertha Lynch and Eunice Dill are defendants, the said plaintiff recovered judgment in the amount of Two Hundred thirty-five and 88-100 dollars for taxes, and legal amount penalties, costs and interests computed thereon, together with the foreclosure of plaintiff's delinquent tax liens upon the property hereinafter described as the property of the defendants, because of non-payment of the taxes due thereon;

And whereas, on the 4th day of January, A. D. 1929, by virtue of the said judgment and the mandates thereof, the Clerk of the District court of said county did cause to be issued an Order of Sale, commanding me as Sheriff of said County to seize, levy upon and sell in the manner and form as required by law the hereinafter described property as the property of the above defendants, to satisfy the said judgment.

Wherefore, by virtue of the said Order of Sale and the mandate thereof, I did on the 5th day of January

A. D. 1929, seize and levy upon as the property of the above defendant, the following property, to-wit:

98 1-2 acres of land on the David Gallagher League in Milam County Texas, and beginning at the N. W. corner of the Common 50 acre tract, same being the N. E. corner of the Vernon Russell 150 acre tract for the N. E. corner of this; thence with the N. line of the 150 acre tract S 60 W. 781 vrs; to a rock for N. And I will on the first Tuesday in the month of February A. D., 1929, the same being the 5th day of said month, proceed to sell said property at the Court House door of said county, in the city of Cameron, between the hours of 2 o'clock p. m. and 4 o'clock p. m., to the highest bidder for cash all the right, title and interest of the above defendants, in and to the above described property; subject, however, to the rights of the defendants, to redeem same in the time and manner provided for by law, and subject to the further rights of the defendants to have said property divided and sold in less divisions than the whole. And in event there are no bidders, said property will at said sale be bid off to the State.

L. L. Blaylock, Sheriff,
Milam County, Texas.

Your Community is in the very heart of America's Greatest

Natural Gas Belt

-and
NATURAL GAS

Attracts Industries — Builds Cities!

DID YOU know that you live right in the heart of the greatest natural gas belt in the country?

Think what this means to you.

Of course it means that you enjoy at low rates the blessing of natural gas--the ideal cooking and heating fuel--for home use.

But it means more than that.

It means growing communities, with constantly increasing property values, because this great natural resource of abundant natural gas attracts industries.

Heat is the heart of industry. Industry inevitably follows fuel resources. Industry is already being attracted to the great Southwest because of its vast natural gas production.

You have other resources...but the most distinctive--the most important--is natural gas. You're "sitting on top of the world" as far as natural gas is concerned!

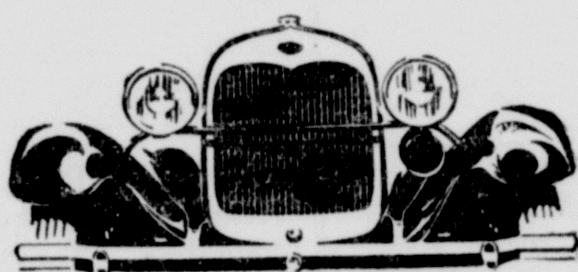

And Lone Star Gas Company, as one of the oldest, largest and strongest of the gas pipe line companies operating in the great Southwest natural gas belt, is always on the alert to make the rich resource of natural gas maximally beneficial to your community--and to you.

This map, based on a map published by H. J. Struth in Natural Gas Magazine, shows in black the principal natural gas producing areas of the country. The Southwest produces three times the amount of natural gas produced by the great California natural gas belt, and practically twice as much as the widely scattered eastern natural gas fields taken as a unit.

Simplicity of cooling system is a feature of the new Ford

A COMPLETE water plant is a part of every automobile as it is a part of every modern city.

The purpose of this water plant is to keep the engine cooled to a temperature that will make it efficient in operation. If it were not for this, the cylinder walls would become overheated and the pistons refuse to operate.

The cooling system of the new Ford is particularly interesting because it is so simple and reliable.

When the radiator is full of water, the engine of the new Ford will not overheat under the hardest driving. Yet the water is so regulated that it will not impair engine operation by running too cold in winter.

The cooling surface of the Ford radiator is large, with four rows of tubes set in staggered position so that each receives the full benefit of the incoming air. The fan is of the airplane propeller type and draws air through the radiator at the rapid rate of 850 cubic feet per minute at 1000 revolutions per minute of the motor.

The hot water around the cylinder head is drawn to the radiator to be cooled by a centrifugal water pump of new design.

The entire cooling system of the new Ford is so simple in design and so carefully made that it requires very little attention.

The radiator should be kept full, of course, and drained once each month so that sediment will not collect and retard the free passage of water. In cold weather, a reliable anti-freeze solution should be added.

As owner and manager of this important water plant you should also see that the water pump and fan shaft are properly lubricated and the packing around the pump shaft kept in adjustment.

Hose connections may also need replacement after long service. For those little adjustments, it pays to call on the Ford dealer.

He works under close factory supervision and he has been specially trained and equipped to do a thorough, competent job at a fair price.

HEROES OF TODAY

The education of a boy is not merely a matter of schooling and discipline. The boy himself does more than his teachers to lay the deeper foundations of his life in the hours he spends with his heroes, who teach him ideals and ambitions and write their message deep in his heart. These heroes, mythical and shadowy though they be, have power over him and gain his love and confidence and the bent and fiber of his character will inevitably reflect their inspiration.

It used to be that knights of old or spectacular heroes of pioneer days were the boon companions of the youthful spirit. But the daily newspaper in every household has wrought its miracle even with the boy. His heroes today are on the front pages of the paper; they are athletes, soldiers and sailors, aviators and explorers and men everywhere who give their strength or hazard their lives in some deed of usefulness and sacrifice.

Boy nature demands heroes and the boy's heroes today are of his own generation and very much alive in the world with him. He may see them, hear their voices and follow their story from day to day. The picture of Lindbergh hangs on the wall of countless boys' bedrooms; they can read the book he has written and catch a glimpse of him as he rides his swift steed above the cities of America. The wise parent and teacher will encourage such a hero worship, so that the torch of high empire may one day pass to hands that are ready for it.

If Patrick Henry, when he said "Give me liberty or give me death," had been asked to define liberty by the particular restraints which he found more grievous to be borne than death itself, he would doubtless have named such as those which a few months later were recited in the Declaration of Independence. Yet while the specific complaints were laid against "a prince whose character was marked by any act which may define a tyrant," there was no clear definition of the liberty which, second to life itself was declared to be the inalienable right with which the Creator has endowed all men.

The Bill of Rights give assurance to the individual of the preservation of his liberty, but they do not define the liberty they promise. Herein lies the cause of much strife and the basis for marked differences in opinion.

Somewhere the line must be drawn, for liberty is in the most literal sense the negation of the law, law being restraint and the absence of all restraint anarchy. To fix the line which will give both the individual and the group scope and opportunity for harmonious development is the overshadowing problem of liberty and law.

Lawmakers have yet to learn to consider personal liberty when protecting public rights and to consider public rights when protecting personal liberty. To be good legislation laws must offend neither.

THE HITCH-HIKER

Hitch-hiking has become so common that the average motorist, even if he is taking only a short trip, is almost certain to be hailed several times and asked for a ride. If he hurries on, he is followed by imprecations.

Unfortunately, if the motorist is soft-hearted and gives the stranger free passage he may find that he has picked up trouble. If he has an accident and his self-invited guest is injured, he may be sued for damages. If he is no more lucky than a number whose adventures have been reported he may find that he is entertaining a bandit during the latter's working hours.

There are thousands of men who tour, or commute, and neither buy gasoline nor pay railroad fare. If these were to pay their way, either the railroads or the automobile industry, or both, would prosper. And not all of them beg transportation by necessity.

Most car owners are reluctant to see hitch-hiking outlawed because of the opportunities it offers school boys to see their country, but the practice has long since attained the proportions of a public nuisance. Many municipalities are curbing it, but beyond their corporate limits the vagabond, modern style, is at liberty to jerk his thumb off without molestation.

Enthusiastic Boosting

Communities and individuals are alike in many respects. One of the outstanding attributes each must possess, to be a success, is enthusiasm. Community enthusiasm is furnished, and abetted, through the co-operation of the individuals composing the community. But first, we must have the enthusiastic individual.

Enthusiasm is contagious. With it a man can arouse his fellow beings and make them to do his bidding. With it he can lead routed armies to victory. With Napoleon dominated his generals and armies until they absorbed the enthusiasm he possessed.

Enthusiasm should be cultivated, and nurtured, until it dominates the individual and his community. The more enthusiastic we become.

However, unless combined with other desirable qualities such as foresight, ability, honesty and industry, it has but intrinsic value. With these qualities to bolster it, there is presented a combination hard to beat.

Let your enthusiasm become contagious. Don't knock. Boost. Yours for a bigger and better and brighter and busier Cameron.

Hail to the "Coffee Johns"

The other day a hot-dog wagon took its place in the Ford Museum in Detroit beside the first Model T and the ten millionth car.

"Coffee John" used to own that wagon and Henry Ford used to eat there when he was a mechanic. Across its counter Ford outlined his plans for a "horseless carriage" to the sympathetic owner, and "Coffee John" lent the money that carried the struggling company over a crisis.

Delve into history of almost any great company and you will find a "Coffee John" who boosted at the right time. Too frequently they are like Lawrence, the designer of Lindbergh's engine, who, when asked why he was so reticent, remarked, "Who ever heard of Paul Revere's horse?"

Lukewarm Souls

The quality of the captain of this comment serves admirably for those who, with diplomatic nicety strive to please everybody or at least the greatest number. Some timorous people hesitate to come out flat-footed and face real issues. They mildly hold to certain convictions, of course, but endeavor to suit their conversations and actions when abroad in the world to the popular beliefs of their fellows.

It is not always an ulterior motive that prompts a man who has been educated in a certain orthodox manner or school of belief to become so "broad" that he readily admits people holding directly opposite views to those he has been taught or learned for himself, are not only absolutely correct themselves hold no small measure of in their opinions but that the views merit. This strange mental contortion can in a great many instances be attributed to the fact that Mr. Mild Mannered Man desires to insure his own popularity by ardently supporting the beliefs of his friends and associates, no matter how contradictory these may be to his own honest convictions.

A lukewarm man seeking to ingratiate himself into the favor of everybody, and in so doing sacrificing principle and conviction, is indeed skating upon thin ice for public favor is a tricky and changing siren and the world at large, after all, has little or no use for a man with an India rubber back-bone.

H. G. Kenney

aid. Mr. Kenney is now standing before the assembled delegates, a copy of the charges in his hand. Outside the building his voice comes with an occasional distinctness. We hear him say:

"I believe I am conversant with God and if I love him he must be better than I am." This is thought to be an amplification of his views regarding the orthodox view of hell fire and damnation.

"Gentlemen, we live in the 20th century. Has the time come when a minister cannot stand in his pulpit and declare to his people the truth?" The wind is growing stronger and the traffic noises shut out from hearing the drama inside.

"If those who believe in the doctrine of total depravity—" again it is lost. Now, again, we hear him say: "I resist it with all the resources of an awakened conscience. Man is a mixture of good and evil, not all good, not all bad. God could have elected to reveal Himself in an adult, no doubt, but the sweet innocence of a babe on that night and the stars—" again it is lost.

"I have never impugned the honesty or integrity of my fellow citizens, what I said was this—" Sensing the dramatic appeal, the sincere, courageous utterance of a flaming heart, the press writers say many things derogatory to executive sessions and wait with patience as the cold wind sweeps the leaves about the building. Then again: "I am confronted with vague, indistinct, dim and poorly written charges. Not one time have they talked with me when these things were fresh on my mind. Not once have they mentioned these matters to me."

Detail Is Unknown

Although we are not to know just what is taking place, we gather in general what is taking place. Mr. Kenney has been charged with criticizing Jesus. "They tell me in Cameron my greatest sermons have been woven about the Master in which I expressed all the sweetness of reverent devotion my heart commands."

Another charge is that Mr. Kenney has advised young men to shun the ministry. We gather that he is saying that unless the orthodoxy stays its attempted moratorium over the minds of searching intellect no spirit may be free or mind map the wilderness of hidden things.

And this seems to be all that we get just here. The session goes on into the late hours of afternoon and soon the shadows begin to gather. Lights flicker along the streets and pedestrians are going along to their homes. They stop with curious gaze to fathom if they may the strange scene that is enacted here. They have read and everywhere interest seems to be excited. Heresy has not been heard of since the bitter days of 15th century orthodox theological ascendancy. Maybe our minds run back to the orgies of the period of Calvin and his contemporary Luther when a new freedom of authority led the ignorant and the fanatic to violence against the Golden Rule doctrine. Maybe our minds are comforted that somehow the sermon on the Mount has found full ground in the awakened conscience which is the vehicle of civilization. Good thoughts for newspaper writers, no doubt, but strange. This thing about theology is uncommon to many of us. We can't set it down in our accustomed way with news writing. Wonder what Jesus would say if he knew about this thing, or is it right, or what?

Excerpts Are Scored

Consistent with his attitude all along Mr. Kenney deplored that charges were made based upon excerpts, totally out of contact with theme and thought of his sermons. He had told the press that it was his belief that this had been done. He reiterated this belief to the members of the press. "I see," said a representative of a certain metropolitan daily. "It is like this. In Joshua 8:29 it says: 'And the King of Ai he hanged on a tree until eventide' and in the writings of Paul we find these words: 'Go thou and do likewise.'" This was a truly significant parallel absurdity and all enjoyed with good humor the penetration of the correspondent.

Clippings Thrown Out

Co-extant with the opening of the session it was learned that newspaper clippings, interviews and all sorts of newspaper writings possible to obtain, including the garbled report of a sermon reported about which Mr. Kenney expressed regret, were placed before the assembly and offered as evidence. These clippings and printings were not admitted and their disposition was perhaps the only "burning" of the day.

Contrary to a printed statement in a Waco newspaper on the day before the hearing in which it was said that Mr. Kenney had charged that the newsmen lacked the intelligence to quote him correctly, following the close of the hearing it was explained that Mr. Kenney never made such a statement. He thanked the press for its uniform courtesy.

Investigation Closes

Shortly after five o'clock the investigation came to a close with the appointment of the committee. Belief is expressed coupled with statements by retiring delegates that the matter had been settled "for the glory of the cause and in justice to all." Dr. McMurray said: "While I do not wish to be quoted, the Presbytery now has a different feeling toward Mr. Kenney. His defense was really a brilliant thing. The whole matter seems to have been in the nature of a general misunderstanding. The committee is to confer with Mr. Kenney sometime between this date and the general assembly in the spring."

It seems that all charges were answered satisfactory by Mr. Kenney but it must be remembered, he insists, that he has not in any way receded from his position on the matters under discussion. It follows as logical, then, that Mr. Kenney convinced the Presbytery that his utterances have not been at variance with truth or with any of the essentials of the faith. One matter of disagreement, however remains to be cleared up. It is possible that this has reference to the resurrection doctrine.

History reveals that Ann Pennington was run into the forest among savages for asking a question about this doctrine. It may be that the matter will be decided on a satisfactory agreement as to which is the more important the manner or form of the resurrection or the fact of it. Mr. Kenney is known to attach greater significance to the fact.

Speaks at Length

Almost continuously Mr. Kenney kept the floor during the afternoon session. During more than two hours he read and answered the charges. After concluding he invited questions and answered all put to him. Tired and worn from the ordeal thru which he had gone, beginning some months ago and ending here today, he went with friends to a hotel where newspaper writers who could not see him earlier in the day met and discussed the matters with him. He did not break the rule of secrecy placed upon him by the executive session but answered many questions, mostly concerning his life and what he would preach about next Sunday.

"I don't know what I will preach about. Really I did not know whether I would preach at all. You may say that I am more than gratified at the outcome of the investigation," he concluded when informed of the statement of Dr. McMurray that practically all matters had been settled to the satisfaction of the Presbytery.

COULD YOU HAVE BELIEVED IT?

If you positively knew you could have $50.00 cash, a thorough business training, a good position and seven months experience if trained in a Byrne College as against no cash, no job or experience if trained in another school, which school would you attend? The answer is easy, but how are you going to convince yourself that a Byrne Commercial College has these great advantages? Here's how. Ask three students that have graduated in the combined course of bookkeeping and shorthand in any other school, if twelve months is not a fair average time to graduate in a school teaching Gregg Shorthand and 20th Century Bookkeeping, then ask three who have graduated in a Byrne Commercial College in the Famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping if four and one-half months is not a fair average time to graduate. Also get the catalogues of the other schools and Byrne's and compare their course of Bookkeeping and Shorthand and time required with Byrne. The Byrne student graduates in four and one-half months, the other in twelve months. Time saved by Byrne, seven and one-half months. Put the time saved by Byrne at a low salary and you will have earned from $500 to $700, and by the use of the famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping taught exclusively in Texas in the three Byrne Colleges under the direction of the author you have not only been given the most modern, thorough, practical training to be had in seven and one-half months less time, but you have seven and one-half months valuable experience and a good position.

Business men prefer Byrne trained office help. Byrne trained students are holding the most responsible bookkeeping, shorthand, secretarial and accounting positions at the best salaries, in the large cities where big business is found. If you can secure and hold the best paying position with four

WHAT WE THINK

By FRANK DIXON

Test of the Educated Man

"The educated man," says Dean Inge of England, "is a man with certain subtle spiritual qualities which make him calm in adversity, happy when alone, just in his dealings and rational and sane on all affairs of life."

But how, we would query the good dean, does he act when company calls along about bed time?

The bride is given away; the bridegroom sold.

It always helps out a chestnut of a story considerably to have the realtor punch you in the ribs and spit in your ear.

Maybe your church is like mine. We always have had a member who would put up if he liked the preacher, but if he did not, he stayed away and pouted and saved that much money.

The trouble with a lot of new brooms is that they invade strange lands with the idea that the denizens thereof are a bunch of rubes who don't know the earth is round, and are 400 years behind the times. At the present stage of the game no community is over 20 years behind the times.

The dean of Wisconsin University says what is needed is a non-political study of the whole farm situation. Yeah? And then let's have one of the whole human situation while we're loafing.

An advertisement reads: "You get the girl—we furnish the rest.—The Winchester Supply Co." We aren't quite sure we'd be comfortable, even with the gentlest of brides, in a house too well supplied with Winchester goods.

This is just a guess of course, but maybe what the kidnapers who swiped the Canadian brewer wanted, was to make him tell how long to let the stuff bubble before bottling it.

The Greely Advocate says: "We saw something that we never saw in a small town before, last Saturday. One of our doctors walked up to his competitor, shook hands and passed a few pleasant remarks."

There is really much tenderness in this cruel world, but the butcher rarely finds it.

A German inventor has invented an alarm clock that bites the sleeper. All those who have tried to sleep on Sunday mornings with a fly buzzing here and there know what an infernal machine it must be.

I just read where a newspaper man in charge of his paper's question box was asked the two following questions:

1. What shall I do for twins who are getting their first teeth?
2. What shall I do to rid my squash of bugs?

In answering he got the answers mixed. To the first question he wrote "Cover pests up with straw and burn and in a few days will be O. K." To the squash problem he wrote, "Rub paregoric on their teeth and they will be all right in a few days."

What Is Important

Today. What more so? What can be more vital than living, sensing, acting today, living sanely, safely, helpfully, comfortably and cheerfully?

To live well today is important because it is our only day. Tomorrow may come, of course, but it has no such consequence as today with its duties, its loves, its sufferings, endure.

ings, unfoldings and making a life. or making a life is more important than making a living, if we but had the courage instead of the desperation of the urgent moment.

A rational life is important as keeping body, the instrument of mundane expression, wholesome and efficient; supplementing Nature's endeavor, or the body is merely a loan from the material elements that is reluctantly returned through death, a beneficent change we mostly fear and shrink away from; a shedding off as a cocoon; a moulting as of a bird its plumage; a change for a new suit with possible beauties of feature and form wrought by precedent pain, experience and active co-operation with Nature in unfolding individuality and character.

Life is continuous and unending; else, how fatuous that it began!

Some creatures of the "lower orders" if they lose a limb, promptly reproduce a new limb quite as capable as the one lost. This typifies our fate: we lay aside one body and produce another form the mysterious elements available, shaped and modeled by forces existent, evoked by and earned thru previous thoughts and aspirations. Individuality is compulsorily evolutionary. It is inevitable, impelling, propelling, compelling towards continuous unfoldment. God is good.

TEXANS! let's talk Texas

—and make 1929
the most active
year Texas has ever experienced

THIS IS an appeal to every Texan to study closely and understand thoroughly the possibilities of his state, and to pass on this understanding to every person with whom he comes in contact, so that everyone who seeks a location for a home, an office or a factory will know exactly what Texas has to offer him. Then Texas will ascend to her just place of leadership. But we must talk Texas—all the time.

Manufacturing must move to the doorways of large markets, where raw material, favorable transportation facilities, taxes and labor supply combine with abundant and economical electric power to afford ideal locations.

Texas cities and towns served by this Company supply each of these needs for a host of industries, but, since physical advantages do not always determine the selection of industrial locations, certain other vital things must be thrown into the balance.

Sound exploitation must be persistently used. The manner in which Texas tells its story will determine its industrial accomplishments in 1929.

The Texas Power & Light Company, employing several hundreds of Texas men and women, endeavors to give each of them a clear conception of the natural resources of Texas and to impress upon them the importance of their development. Basically the purpose of this Company is to render an electric service to a large number of Texas cities and towns.

Having done this, and having charted courses of growth that anticipate vast developments in the Texas of tomorrow, this Company feels that its duty to Texas extends still deeper. Therefore it is telling the story of Texas' advantages to industries through the use of paid advertising in sectional and national trade magazines. The purpose of this advertising is to stimulate the movement of industries to Texas.

TEXANS LET'S TALK TEXAS

For sixteen years the Texas Power & Light Company has worked not only to serve an appreciative public but to help build a greater State.

Texans! Let's make 1929 the greatest year of sound development Texas has ever had.

Use Oversize Tires For More Mileage

"The use of oversize tires will enable many motorists to get much greater satisfaction and longer mileage than with regular tires," according to Horstmann Brothers of Cameron, Firestone dealers.
"Motor cars are equipped with tires that are ample for any ordinary use, provided they are inflated to the correct pressure. However, most motorists abuse their tires by overloading them and through failure to keep them 'pumped up.'
"Oversizing allows a much greater margin of safety and in the long run justifies the extra expense. There are many advantages to using oversize tires, including more comfortable riding, better braking with less tendency to skid and less tire trouble. The larger tire is not so easily cut or bruised and the tread wears much longer.
"Last but not least, the oversize tire will average far greater mileage, which in terms of cost per mile, means economy. In tires as in everything else, it pays to buy dependable, quality merchandise and Firestones have a long established reputation for being the leader in that field."

METHODIST CHURCH

We called in our services last Sunday. Conditions seem to be improving. All services will be held next Sunday on the usual schedule.

Those who are well are urged to come and help make up for lost time. Our building will be comfortable. The work of the church is supremely important. It needs the attention of all who desire to see it succeed.

The Sunday School will convene at 9:45; the Epworth Juniors will meet at 2:30. The Seniors and the Epworth Hi's at 6:00.

The pastor will preach at 11:00 and 7:00.

CHRISTMAS SEAL NOTIFICATION

Noting the fact that a number of recipients of Christmas Seals have overlooked mailing their checks for same or returning the seals, the undersigned committee will greatly appreciate attention to this matter.

Immediately after Christmas, the proceeds to date were forwarded to Texas Public Health Association and sincere thanks extended to those who had helped in this health work.

We now await final returns that we may complete our work for Cameron as soon as possible.

COULD YOU HAVE BELIEVED IT?

If you positively knew you could have $50.00 cash, a thorough business training, a good position and seven months experience if trained in a Byrne College as against no cash, no job or experience if trained in another school, which school would you attend? The answer is easy, but how are you going to convince yourself that a Byrne Commercial College has these great advantages? Here's how. Ask three students that have graduated in the combined course of bookkeeping and shorthand in any other school, if twelve months is not a fair average time to graduate in a school teaching Gregg Shorthand and 20th Century Bookkeeping, then ask three who have graduated in a Byrne Commercial College in the Famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping if four and one-half months is not a fair average time to graduate. Also get the catalogues of the other schools and Byrne's and compare their course of Bookkeeping and Shorthand and time required with Byrne. The Byrne student graduates in four and one-half months, the other in twelve months. Time saved by Byrne, seven and one-half months. Put the time saved by

Byrne at a low salary and you will have earned from $500 to $700, and by the use of the famous Byrne Shorthand and Bookkeeping taught exclusively in Texas in the three Byrne Colleges under the direction of the author you have not only been given the most modern, thorough, practical training to be had in seven and one-half months less time, but you have seven and one-half months valuable experience and a good position.

Business men prefer Byrne trained office help. Byrne trained students are holding the most responsible bookkeeping, shorthand, secretarial and accounting positions at the best salaries, in the large cities where big business is found. If you can secure and hold the best paying position with four and one-half months training in a Byrne College why spend twelve months in some school not permitted to teach the famous Byrne system? Byrne scholarships are sold under a money back guarantee. Get the Byrne bookkeeping and shorthand in one-half the time and one-half the cost of others.

Byrne Colleges operate three free employment service departments for the placing of all their graduates. Write for catalogue today. Investigate, you are entitled to the best. Byrne Commercial College, Dallas, Houston and San Antonio. H. E. Byrne, president. 37-38c

Roll call showed the following present: C. S. Peyton, J. D. Dobbins, W. M. Cobb, F. S. Lesovsky, W. H. Shipp, J. W. Coleman, W. O. Newton, C. W. Lawrence, T. A. Fisher, Dr. James Watson, Dan Tyson, E. S. Hutcherson, T. S. Henderson, Jr., and Willard Reese.

Mr. Henderson stressed the need of tick eradication in order to promote the dairy interests and offered a motion that a committee be appointed to call upon the Commissioner's Court and urge that steps be taken as quickly as possible to have Milam county or as much of it as possible made tick free. Carried. President Peyton appointed the following named on this committee: T. S. Henderson, Jr., F. S. Lesovsky and Willard Reese.

C. W. Lawrence suggested that it would be a big help to the dairy movement if steps were taken to finance people who desired to buy more and better cows. On motion duly made and carried the president was authorized to appoint and appointed the following committee: Moulton Cobb, F. E. Jackson and J. C. Tucker.

Mr. Reese reported that Rockdale, Thorndale and Rosebud were co-operating with the Milk Products Company and farmers in those sections who desired to buy good cows were given the necessary financial aid. He also related that Taylor Chamber of Commerce was putting on a dairy school and found it to be a fine thing.

Mr. Coleman stated that one of our preachers had told him that there was more poverty in Milam county than he ever found in any other place and he looked upon the dairy movement as the best plan to rid the county of poverty.

Mr. Fisher said that there was an obligation resting upon the shoulders of every citizen to help in this movement for the general good.

Mr. Lesovsky said, "I have made up my mind to help the dairy movement in every way possible. Not so that the factory may make money, but to do what I can to make Milam county farmers more prosperous and independent."

There being no further business the meeting adjourned and attended the annual venison feast at the Newport Cafe.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher.

"I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough T. C. C. training.

"At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In the big illustrated book, "Achieving Success in Business" are printed scores of stories of men and women who have reached success as a result of training. The book is free. No obligation. Won't you let us send you a copy? Just clip the coupon below and mail it today.

Lesson for January 13

SIN

LESSON TEXT—1 John 1:5-2:6.
GOLDEN TEXT—If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Grieving God.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Grieving God.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Sin is and Does.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Sin and its Consequences.

There is much disparity between the subject and the Scripture unit selected for study. Since the plan is to present the subject topically, using the many texts, it is proper that we should first give a definition of sin.

The etymology of the word translated sin in both the Hebrew and the Greek signifies "to deviate from the way—to miss the mark"; therefore a going aside. Failure to measure up to a standard is sin. Sin is also the transgression of the law (1 John 3:4). The positive meaning then is that sin is a transgression of the law. Deeper than all this is the condition of the soul, out of which all thought and actions spring. This is called by Paul concupiscence (Rom. 7:7, 8).

I. The Origin of Sin (Gen. 3:1-24)
 Man was placed on probation in the Garden of Eden. This was necessary because Adam was created with the possibility of character, but not with character. This he could get only through testing. Free will, alternative choice, which Adam possessed as a creature bearing the likeness and image of God, made character possible and inevitable.

Character is the resultant of choice. The means used was most simple. God issued just one prohibition. Alongside the tree of good and evil was the tree of life. Satan, a personal being, appeared in the guise of a serpent. He insinuated doubt into Eve's mind and appealed to innocent appetite. She gazed upon and lusted after that which God had forbidden. Following this, she involved Adam in her sin. From this account we see that sin originated, so far as the race is concerned, in the free choice of the head of the race, and through the law of heredity has passed upon all mankind.

II. The Universality of Sin (Rom. 3:1-18).

By the use of numerous quotations from the Scriptures, Paul proves that every member of the race is guilty of sin. He does not admit of an exception.

III. The Fate of Sinners (Gen. 6:5-8).

The disobedience of man greatly displeased God and He resolved to destroy man from the face of the earth. God's nature is such that sin must be punished.

IV. The Source of Sin (Mark 7:14-23).

All evil thinking and practice spring out of the heart of man. The heart stands for the very center and foundation of the personality. The reason men think vile thoughts is because of their vile nature, which is the result of original sin.

V. The Sins of Believers (1 John 1:5-2:6).

1. How perceived (v. 5).
 God is here declared to be light. Therefore sin is perceived through the glorious light of the Divine being. No one can see God without seeing himself a vile sinner. To claim fellowship with God while walking in darkness is the lie of life.

2. The Divine remedy for sin (v. 7).
 It is the blood of Jesus Christ. Without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sin.

3. The believer's responsibility (v. 9).

It is to confess his sin. It is only when we are conscious of our sins in the light of God that we are disposed to make confession of them.

4. God grants forgiveness and cleansing (vv. 9, 10).

Because of His provision in the atonement of Jesus Christ, God is able on the basis of justice to forgive the sinner who confesses his sin. Because of His faithfulness in dealing with His children on the basis of the finished work of Christ, He not only forgives, but He cleanses them from all sin.

5. Christ the believer's advocate (2:1, 2).

For believers to sin is not necessary, but the advocate who champions his cause in case of sin is the Lord Jesus Christ Himself, who on Calvary's cross made a propitiation for his sin.

6. Christ's followers obey Him (v. 5).
 Those who have experienced God's saving grace render obedience to His Word.

The Love of Christ

A stream can rise no higher than its source. It takes the love of Christ coming into a man's heart to raise him above himself, sweep away the sins he cannot conquer, and fill him with peace and power.

Wealth

Wealth is a weak anchor and cannot support a man; this is the word of God, that virtue only is firm cannot be shaken by a tempest.

Texas and Texans

By Will H. Mayo

Lively Session Expected

If any dependence can be placed in pre-legislative whisperings, the January legislative session will be the liveliest since the impeachment of Governor Ferguson. It is expected that the early days of the session will be devoted largely to oil lease matters in connection with the University lands in West Texas and to inquiries into the reasons prompting the land commissioner to advertise the leasing of some 103,000 acres of land for oil development a few days in advance of the legislative session that is expected to amend the present lease law and why some advertised leases were withdrawn at the request of the governor and on the advice of the attorney-general's department that it could be done, while others were not. Before this departmental turmoil is settled, the legislature will likely be busy in efforts to adopt many corrective measures in connection with the administration of State affairs.

Waste of Public Money

It is the opinion of some legislators that there is too much waste of the tax money of the people of Texas—not exactly corrupt waste, but excessive expenditures of a kind that would not be tolerated in a private business. In the educational institutions supported by the State, it is asserted by some that there is too much duplication—that the schools are not keeping within the scope for which they were established, but without legislative authority are gradually assuming work not contemplated in their establishment. There is also complaint heard that there is too much conflict between certain State departments, with duplication of effort and expense that there is entirely too much and too expensive traveling about over the State and out of the State by salaried officials and employees for which the people get little or no returns, and that few departments or institutions are free from this wasteful expense. These are a few of the things that are talked about in and around legislative halls, but whether the talk will amount to anything more than talk remains to be seen. Such things make legislative sessions interesting.

Bank Clearings Increase

Bank clearings afford a good index to the business of a section, and Christmas shopping is another guide to prosperity of a people. Most of the buying immediately before Christmas is of a kind classed as luxuries and the purchasers are largely for gifts. The more prosperous a people the more gifts they make and the more expensive they are. This spending is shown in the bank clearings. In Dallas the bank clearances for the week before Christmas were $10,000,000 above those of the corresponding week of 1927, and in the Federal Reserve Banking District there were about $30,000,000 more than in the previous year.

Great Public Projects

McLennan county will spend some $16,000,000 on six major public projects in 1929 which is about 8 times the average annual expenditure for all classes of building for the past ten years. The largest single item is $7,000,000 for god roads, to include 169 miles of 20 foot concrete highway construction and 330 miles of gravelled country crossroads. McLennan county is building for the future as well as the present.

Banks Consolidate

Two large San Saba banks have recently consolidated, giving that good city one of the strong financial institutions of that section of the State. Banks seem to be following the general trend of business in the matter of consolidation and the elimination of competition. While much may be said in favor of large capitalization, when business competition of any kind is reduced there is always a danger that the character of the service rendered will also be decreased.

"Try Elgin First"

The Elgin Courier suggests as the motto for its town, "Try Elgin First," which is but right. The home business man spends his money largely with home folks, contributes to everything for the community upbuilding, makes the town liveable—in short there would be no town without him and none of the conveniences of modern town life. It is unfair to him to run away from home and patronize neighboring cities without at least giving him a fair trial. If he can not or will not meet competition then he should be willing to suffer the consequences, but he should have the first chance.

East Central Texas Oil

While the big production of Texas oil continues to be in a few West Texas and East Texas counties, what for lack of better designation may be called East Central Texas, is rapidly increasing its production. Luling promises to rank soon with Spindletop in quantity of oil. Gonzales, Bastrop and other neighboring places are attracting attention, and the Waller county field is now classed among the best in the State. Oil operators feel that the beginning of oil development in Texas has as yet hardly been made.

Texas Cotton King Dead

J. W. McFarlane of Palestine, who, because of producing the largest amount of cotton on five acres of land in a contest fostered by the Dallas News, became widely known throughout the country as the "Cotton King of Texas," died suddenly at his home during Christmas week. McFarlane became noted as a cotton grower, but his greatest value to the people was in showing them that Texas farms are even better adapted to numerous other crops than to cotton and that successful farming is not limited to cotton production. He was primarily a farmer and not merely a cotton grower, and he loved to see a farm produce everything that can be grown on it.

Ford Buys Texas Honey

Henry Ford buys his "pear honey" in Texas. Why not? Texas "pear honey" is the best in the world and Texas has been good to Henry Ford. A

Smith county club woman, living near Swan, conceived the idea that Texas honey should be pleasing to the Ford palate and she let him know about it. She recently received an order for ten pints of her best "pear honey" and of course Ford will become a permanent customer.

Marvin Jones' Proposal
 Texas Congressman Marvin Jones is

trying to have the Department of Agriculture devote more attention and help to the marketing problems of the farm. The farmer produces more than he can sell to any advantage and the middleman and public carriers get about all the profits from his production. The congressman who will make it his business to change this so that farming will be profitable will immortalize himself.

Read what these leading automobile editors said after seeing and riding in the new Chevrolet Six—

"In appearance, performance and mechanical nicety the new Chevrolet Six presents actual values far beyond its price range."

—Hazen Conklin
 New York World

"Aside from beauty in body lines and attractiveness in finish, the outstanding feature of the new Chevrolet Six is its powerful and flexible motor. One will have to go far to equal the high performance of this new Chevrolet in general road and traffic use."

—Leon J. Pinkson
 San Francisco Chronicle

"The new Chevrolet is a triumph for volume production. The car at its price is one of the greatest achievements ever recorded in the automobile industry. Its beauty is a treat; its riding comfort a new delight and its performance a real sensation."

—Ray Priest
 Detroit Times

"St. Louis motordom is tremendously enthused over the new Chevrolet Six. Personally I have never seen the public so interested in a new car. The factory should be congratulated on the truly monumental engineering feat it has accomplished."

BUYS CAMERON PROPERTY AND ENDS QUARTER CENTURY AS SPECIALIST IN PROFESSION IN CAMERON

DR. G. B. TAYLOR

Dr. G. B. Taylor has recently purchased the building formerly occupied by the Pace-Marshall Drug Company and has had the building remodeled with a new roof and the interior repapered and decorated. Dr. Taylor is now one of the large property owners of the city.

Dr. Taylor is a native of Bell county and president of the Central District Medical Society which met in Temple on Wednesday, January 9. This district is composed of 17 counties.

Dr. Taylor has resided in Cameron for the past 26 years and in this allotted time he has seen the city grow from a town of 2500 people to greater than six thousand. In his profession he has given the city greater prestige and his service to the city and surrounding community has been appreciated. He has been active in matters of sanitation and in his practice has served in many public capacities.

Three years ago he purchased the brick building now occupied by his office and the Square Drug Store placing this business in a better condition and making it more attractive. Last year Dr. Taylor bought the Ackerman building, remodeling and placing this building in a sanitary condition, the lower story being occupied by the Vaughn Dry Goods Company. Recently Dr. Taylor purchased the building owned by the Scarbrough estate of Austin, occupied by the Pace-Marshall Drug Company for many years.

Dr. Taylor has just finished his 25th year as local eye, ear, nose and throat specialist for the Southern Pacific railroad, also his 18th year as local specialist for the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe. He has always been a staunch member of the various medical societies, a member of the American Medical Association for 25 years. He has served as president of the Milam County Society and is serving his 10th year as secretary and treasurer of the society.

Dr. Taylor was elected vice president of the State Medical Society in Texas in 1925.

He is the father of Jack Taylor, noted athlete of Yoe High School and Baylor University. Jack has broken the world's record in many track events at Austin, Dallas, Houston, New Orleans and Chicago. He has been awarded 35 track and field medals. Jack in March 1928 married Miss Vertna Davidson of Waco, both being students at Baylor University. Jack has now settled down to become a prosperous business man. He owns the drug store opposite the Baylor University campus on the corner and is doing a splendid business, reports here indicate.

"Family Up Stairs" Is Pleasing But Few Attend The Play

"The Family Upstairs," a three-act comedy sponsored by the Business and Professional Woman's Club and presented at the Yoe High Auditorium Tuesday evening, provided two hours of entertainment of not an ordinary nature for Cameron people. This club is to be congratulated on the many attractions it has brought here during the current season.

The cast for "The Family Upstairs" consisted of six persons who really took part in the performance, and one who was mentioned but who did not appear. The family was made up of "Pa" Heller; "Ma", an overzealous person much given to exaggeration and possessing a glib tongue; "Sister" sweet and wholesome and without pretense; "Brother," a typical "drug-store cowboy" of 1927, and a regular guy in his own estimation; the "Boy Friend" a good catch for Sister as agreed by her family; and the Boy Friend's "Ma" who played an unseen, unheard part.

As is suggested in the name, the story concerns the activities of a typical family made up of persons of marked characteristics. "Ma" Heller's ambition in life is to see her daughter, Louise, who "was 21 years old last March," happily married, not so much to insure the girl's happiness but to remove any possibility of their being talked about by the neighbors and to avoid the humiliation of having a maiden daughter. However, when THE young man appeared, in her eagerness to impress him, she exaggerated to such an extent that she frightened him away, causing a broken engagement. In the end as all good comedies do, thru the maneuvers of "Pa," the boy friend comes back again and all is forgiven.

The actors and actresses whose names with the exception of Noah Beilharz in the role of "Pa" Heller, were not mentioned on the programs, gave a credible performance. Each had a clear-cut character to interpret and he did it with the skill of an experienced performer. And there were some difficult scenes. For example, in the first act the family was served a meal which they consumed in a most natural manner. Those people who are even slightly experienced in dramatics know that such a scene tends to be awkward. The romantic scenes between Louise and her lover were also done in an easy, graceful manner.

The attendance was a disappointment to the Business Women and it is said that the play was a financial loss to them.

Mrs. B. V. Shirley and children are visiting in Temple this week, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Berry.

Lesson for January 20

CHRIST THE SAVIOR

LESSON TEXT—Luke 15:3-7; Romans 5:6-10.

GOLDEN TEXT—And thou shalt call His name Jesus; for it is He that shall save His people from their sins.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Our Savior.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Jesus Saves Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Christ, the World's Redeemer.

I. The Savior Predicted (Gen. 3:15; Is. 9:6, 7).

In connection with the fall of man and the pronouncement of judgment upon the woman, man and the serpent, and the announcement of the undying enmity which was to exist between the seed of the woman and the seed of the serpent, ultimate victory was predicted of the woman's seed. This enmity has continued all through the ages, even to the present time. On the cross of Calvary the final stroke was made which crushed his head (John 12:31; Heb. 2:14; 1 John 3:8). This announcement concerning the Conquering One was the first gleam of the glorious gospel of Christ. A great victory was won, but at an infinite cost. The prediction of the Savior became more specific in Isaiah 9:6, 7. The eternal Son of God was "given" to the world, but He was "born" as a child.

II. The Savior Born (Luke 2:11, 30, 32).

That which had been predicted was historically fulfilled in the birth of Jesus Christ at Bethlehem. When Jesus was brought into the temple as a child, the Holy Ghost revealed to Simeon that this was the Messiah. He took the child Jesus in his arms and blessed God, declaring that he had now with his eyes seen God's salvation and that He was to be a light to lighten the Gentiles and was to be the glory of Israel. This appearance of the Savior was heralded to the shepherds by the angels as they ascribed to God the highest glory and announced peace on earth and good will to men.

III. The Savior Described.

1. He seeks the lost (Luke 15:3-7). This seeking of the lost is illustrated by the man leaving the ninety and nine sheep and going after the one which was lost, and his rejoicing over his success in finding it.

2. He died for the lost (John 3:14-17).

As the brazen serpent was lifted up in the wilderness by Moses, so Jesus Christ was lifted up on the cross. God gave Jesus Christ to die, to make an atonement for the sins of the world. All those who believe on Him receive eternal life and therefore escape condemnation. Christ's coming into the world was not to condemn the world, but to bring to it salvation.

3. He knows His own (John 10:14).

As the Good Shepherd who seeks out the lost and gives His life for them, He has a definite knowledge of each one of them. Not only does He know them personally, but they in turn know Him.

4. He keeps His own (John 10:27-29).

Believers are Christ's sheep and because they are His sheep they hear His voice and follow Him. He not only gives unto them eternal life but holds them in His omnipotent hands. They are absolutely secure because no man is able to pluck them out of His hands.

IV. Some Blessings Received Through the Savior.

1. Physical strength (Acts 3:1-11).

The healing of the lame man at the beautiful gate of the temple is a fine example of Christ's ability to heal the body. This man had been lame from birth. Because the life of Jesus Christ was brought into touch with him, he was able immediately to arise—strength came into his feet and ankle bones. Not only did he arise, but he walked and leaped, praising God.

2. Justification (Rom. 5:1-11).

The one who receives Jesus Christ is declared righteous. His guilt is removed and because he is justified, he has peace with God, the assurance that God loves him, and real joy in God Himself.

3. Christ is the Supreme Example to the believer (Phil. 2:5-10).

Because the Savior became incorporated with the race through the incarnation, He is able to impart life to those with whom He is identified. Furthermore, because He thus imparts life, the believer is able to make Him an example. He is able to express the same spirit of devotion and humility in giving himself in service instead of being served.

Spend Time With God

It is the failure to spend a definite even though it be short, time each day with God that is the secret of all weakness, variability, and shallowness in our spiritual experience and service.

Man Alone Able to Think

Of all God's creatures man alone is able to think immortality. What Darwin called "the grand instinct" has survived for countless aeons the shock of bodily death.—Dr. S. P. Cadman.

TEACHER TO EXECUTIVE IN TWO YEARS

A few years ago, he was a country school teacher, drawing a meager salary six or eight months out of the year and discouraged with the outlook for the future.

Two years later, he was Deputy Collector of Internal Revenue for the District of Arkansas, with an all-the-year-round income many times that which he had drawn as a teacher. "I'm just beginning my career," he says.

One decision, a little determination, and the encouragement of a far-sighted little wife made this wonderful change in the course of his life. His story may prove helpful to hundreds of others.

Raised on a farm and having attended country school until he had completed a two-year high school course, Lonzo A. Ross was twenty-one years of age before he "struck out for himself" as a country school teacher. For five years he followed this profession. Then, having taken unto himself a wife, he began to think a bit more about the future. He had made no progress as a teacher, although he liked the work. Encouraged by his wife, he decided to fit himself for a business position and enrolled at Tyler Commercial College, Tyler, Texas.

His first position upon graduation paid him a yearly salary more than three times that which he had drawn as a teacher. The following year he was appointed deputy collector of Internal Revenue—a position he could never have held but for his thorough

T. C. C. training.

"At any cost, get a T. C. C. graduate," is his advice to employers. And to teachers and other ambitious young people: "Get a T. C. C. training."

In the big illustrated book, "Achieving Success in Business" are printed scores of stories of men and women who have reached success as a result of training. The book is free. No obligation. Won't you let us send you a copy? Just clip the coupon below and mail it today.
